THAW RETURNS TO HIS CELL

Accompanied by an old friend, Dr. Walter Riddle of Sewickley, Thaw left for Philadelphia this afternoon. Little formality attended the departure.

Thaw, who killed Stanford White for love of Evelyn Nesbit, was visiting his mother, Mrs. William Thaw, at the Thaw mansion here since Wednesday a week ago. His parole ends at midnight tonight.

FRENCH EXACT DEATH PENALTY

DUSSELDORF, March 3.—The first death penalty of the Ruhr occupation is likely to be inflicted at Essen, according to a news agency report. A German corporal named Och was arrested, accused of tampering with a switch on the main rail line which carries troops. The French and Belgians have decided upon the death penalty for such offenses.

SPECULATOR IS FOUND, SUICIDE

CHICAGO, March 3.—Capt. William Hildebraud, who recently lost $15,000 in speculation, was found dead in his apartment here today by police who were sent to investigate by Mrs. Eva Countess.

Mrs. Countess received a letter from the army officer saying:

"By the time you get this, I will already be a suicide."

Hildebrand had a bullet wound in his chest and a revolver lay at his side. He had been dead two days.

Friends said Hildebrand and Mrs. Countess had planned to marry.

OMAHA KIDDIES WEEPING

Six Given Suspended Sentences for Appearing in Theatrical Act.

OMAHA, March 3.—Tears flowed freely in juvenile court today when six little boys and girls, ranging in age from five to thirteen years, who appeared in a public performance at a south side theater last week were given ssupended sentences of six months each in Riverview reform school by Judge Day. The court suspended sentences on condition that none of the children appear in theaters again.

"The law must be observed," the judge said. "We cannot quibble over technicalities."

The little defendants pleaded that they had received no compensation for the work and that they considered a part of their course of dancing lessons. All were pupils of Dorothy Devere, society dancing teacher.

The case was a test of the child labor law. Charges are pending against Miss Devere and Louis and Sam Epstein, owners of the theater.

CAMPBELL SUIT DISMISSED

Judge Colby Says Wife Not Deserted as Husband Maintained Home for Her.

WYMORE, Neb., March 3.—The case of Hattie Campbell, who is suing her husband, George W. Campbell, Wymore, postmaster, for divorce, was settled Friday in district court in Beatrice, and the case dismissed. The couple has not lived together for the past four years, Mrs. Campbell staying in a home with one of her children, and Campbell maintaining a furnished home here which he has occupied. It is understood Judge Colby refused the wife a divorce on this account, showing having been made that she was not deserted, and that the home was ready for her at any time, but she chose not to return. It is said that while Campbell did not care to become reconciled, he also did not care to allow the wife a divorce. He was ordered by the judge to pay Mrs. Campbell $50 per month, and $150 cash, besides paying attorneys fees, which will about to about $400. Some personal property will be divided, but the wife failed in her attempt to have an 80 acre farm, now standing in the name of Mr. Campbell, located two miles south of Wymore, divided. It is understood that this farm originally belonged to her, but was deeded to Campbell several years ago, and he refused to deed back. Campbell was one of the unsuccessful applicants for a re-appointment for the Wymore postoffice recently.

COATTAILS ARE LONGER

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Coattails in the house were elongated at least a foot today on the eve of adjournment.

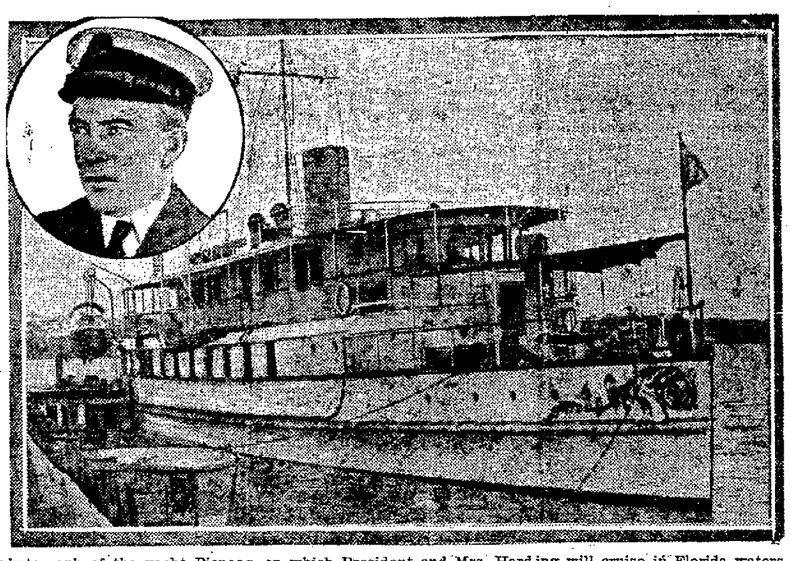

Most members whose terms were cut off by the voters appeared all trussed up in stuffy cutaways and Prince Alberts to strut their remaining hours on the stage, despite the rising temperature.

ANDERSON'S ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE ASSISTANT AND BOOKKEEPER AT GRAND JURY INQUIRY

PRESIDENTIAL YACHT FOR FLORIDA VACATION CRUISE, AND CAPTAIN

This photograph of the yacht Pioneer, on which President and Mrs. Harding will cruise in Florida waters, was made while the pleasure craft was tied up recently at Ormond Beach, Fla. The insert shows the commander, Capt. John Klang of Brooklyn, N. Y. The yacht is owned by Emil Kluge of New York City. The Hardings will leave Washington March 5.

LEARN THRU APPLICATION

Lincoln Children Are Taught Arithmetic by Conducting Markets and Other Projects.

Lincoln teachers of the third and fourth grades have held two meetings recently to study practical problems in arithmetic. The modern theory that arithmetic must function in a child's life, if it is to be of value, was considered with possible practical applications. At the first meeting, held at the Elliott school, a market demonstration was given. Children from the Bryant, Capitol, Elliott, Hartley, Hawthorne and McKinley schools brought their products and sold them to the teachers. Difficulties in weighing, measuring, making change and serving customers were noted. Miss Edith Graham's third grade pupils of Clinton school, gave a dramatization of Hebrew life.

The same teachers met at the Capitol school February 28 for a discussion meeting. Suggestions as to projects in gardening and other practical situations were given. This work is under the direction of Miss Sadie Baird, chairman of the arithmetic committee, and Miss Alice Hanthorn, elementary supervisor.

TAKE WINTER SHORT COURSE

Union Pacific Agricultural Agents Attend State Colleges.

C. C. Gignoux, the assistant agricultural agent of the Union Pacific Railway company has just finished the winter Short Course in agriculture given at the Nebraska agricultural college.

Mr. Gignoux says he is well satisfied that his time has been well spent and that he will be able to use his training to the advantage of his company, and to the people the railroad serves as well as himself.

Mr. Gignoux is one of three such assistant agricultural agents whom the Union Pacific has sent to agricultural short courses during recent months. One agent took his training at Kansas, the other at Utah.

T. R. CALLAN IS DEAD

ODELL, Neb., March 3.—T. R. Callan, sixty-seven years old, pioneer settler of southern Gage county, prominent and widely known business man of Odell for the past thirty-one years died at his home at this place Friday afternoon. He suffered a paralytic stroke one week ago, and his left side was rendered useless. For many years, with his sons, he had operated a hardware store, and an auto salesroom and garage, at Odell. For seven years the eldest son, John, was postmaster here, having been appointed under the Wilson administration. Mr. Callan is survived by the widow, and two sons, John and Richard, of Odell, and two daughters, Mrs. Madge Christlieb, of Wymore, and Mrs. Ruth Benson, wife of a Burlington railway mail clerk, of Lincoln. Burial will be at Odell.

BRIEF STATE NEWS.

Kearney—The big Holstein sale held here today by the Nebraska and Mid-West Holstein-Friesian association, brought out about one thousand prospective buyers. Fifty head of registered pedigreed stock were disposed of, the majority milch cows. Two young bulls and some heifers were in the lot. The top cow brought $300 and went to W. H. Richards, of Odessa. The majority of all stock sold remains in this portion of the state, many Buffalo county farmers being buyers. It was considered by members of the association the greatest sale held by their organization to date.

Kearney—Holstein breeders held a banquet in the chamber of commerce rooms last evening, being addressed by H. M. Hildebrand of Seward; Prof. J. H. Frandsen of Lincoln; Prof. H. F. Davis of Lincoln and Kirk Griggs of Hastings. The following officers were elected: E. F. Haiger, Beatrice, president; W. H. Swartsley, Riverdale, vice president; J. E. Palm, Lincoln, secretary; H. N. Otto, Aurora, treasurer; C. J. Furry, Franklin and F. E. Putnam, Beatrice, directors.

Spalding—William Berney, 83, a veteran of the Civil war was buried Saturday from St. Michael's church, Father Galvin officiating. He was a pioneer and leaves a wife and seven children and thirty two grandchildren. His son, John, is present county judge of Wheeler county and also editor and publisher of Wheeler County Independent. He was buried with full military honors by the American Legion.

Nebraska City—Driving at a terrific rate of speed, a delivery truck from Omaha left the highway between Palmyra and Unadilla, crashed into the guide rails that protect the traffic, severed three of the heavy posts almost in twain, broke the big steel cable, came back over the twisted cable and knocked down the three posts, and then sped on its way, apparently uninjured by the wild experience. County Engineer Schwderer, after repairing the guide rail, begun a search for the driver of the automobile.

STOCKHOLDERS IN CHARGES

Attorney for Skinner Stockholders Declares Company Paid Dividends Out of Capital.

OMAHA, March 3.—Charges that the Skinner Packing company paid dividends out of capital and never made a cent of profit from its inception until it went into receivership were made in an answer filed in federal court today by M. L. Donovan, attorney representing sixty-eight of the 500 stockholders of the Skinner company who are resisting Receiver Neville's suit to collect remaining payments on stock purchased by them, totaling $90,000.

PRESENT DISSOLUTION PLANS

Representatives of Daugherty Appear to Separate Lehigh Valley.

NEW YORK, March 3.—The department of justice here today took the first step to carry out the supreme court's decision ordering the complete separation of the Lehigh Valley Railroad company from its subsidiaries engaged in mining, selling and transportation of anthracite coal.

Representatives of Attorney General Daugherty appeared in the U. S. court for the southern district of New York and presented the government's plan for dissolution.

TWO MINERS ARE KILLED

Fall of Rock Brings Death to One Man and Another Dies of Ice Dropping on Him.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., March 3.—Two miners were killed and seven injured, two perhaps fatally, in incidents at local mines during the last twenty-four hours, according to reports of local hospitals today.

Paul Page, forty-two, was killed by a fall of rock at the Diamont colliery of the Haddock Coal company today and W. F. Phillips, twenty-six, died today from injuries received at Edwardsville when a large piece of ice ice fell on hi mas he was "running" out a car of coal

GO ON STRIKE OVER WAGES

About 225 Plumbers and Steamfitters and Some Helpers Refuse to Work at Omaha.

OMAHA, Neb., March 3.—About 225 plumbers and steamfitters and twenty-five helpers refused to go to work, as the result of failure of their wage scale representatives to agree with a conference board representing employers.

The union men demanded a wage of $1.25 an hour. The employers' board offered $1.12 1-2 an hour as a compromise. The steamfitters and journeymen plumbers refused the 12 1-2 cents increase and voted Thursday night to strike. The only major building operation affected is Technical high school and contractors declare other work can continue on the building for at least thirty days.

"We will stand pat for the $1.12 1-2 wage," said John A. Anderson, 2404 Leavenworth street, chairman of the employers' conference board. "This is as much or more than is being paid in other cities in this part of the country. We are against a return to the war scale."

Electricians also have refused a 12 1-2 cent increase, and may take a strike vote in a few days to determine whether to quit work to fight for a scale of $1.25 an hour.

SHOULD APRIL 1 BE EASTER?

Mount Carmel Paper Declares It Should Come One Sunday Later.

MOUNT CARMEL, Pa., March 3.—The question of whether April 1 is the correct day on which to celebrate Easter this year is raised by the Mount Carmel Item, which asks for clergymen's opinions.

"If astronimical and ecclesiastical authorities are correct in their deductions, April 8, should have been designated as Easter Sunday this year and not April 1," this paper said. Easter day this year, according to 1923 calendars, occurs on the same day as the paschal full moon, while the authorities of old declared that it must come on the Sunday following the full moon.

PRISONER HUNGER STRIKES

Nicola Sacco Has Refused to Eat Prison Food for Sixteen Days.

DEDHAM, Mass., March 3.—Nicola Sacco, convicted murderer, who has refused to eat prison food for the last sixteen days, seemed unhurt by his abstinence today. Prison officials state that while Sacco has refused the ordinary prison fare, he has been receiving fruit and candy from friends. Dr. A. W. Worthington, reported Sacco in better health than he had been for weeks.

Hunts Wife Who Jailed Him.

OMAHA, Neb., March 3.—William McLean, whose wife turned him in to police for theft of a curling iron after she said he failed to "make good" on his thirty day probation, yesterday finished a thirty day jail sentence.

"I'm going to hunt up my wife and try and win her back," he said, as he departed from jail.

McLean's bride delivered him to detectives after finding several letters in his pocket from a Council Bluffs girl.

BABE TO BE IN BED AT LEAST A WEEK

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 3.—"It will be another week at least before Babe Ruth can leave his sick bed," Dr. A. W. Wooten who is in constant attendance upon the babe, declared this afternoon.

The physician said the champion slugger showed slight indications of improvement today after a most restless night, and that his temperature, pulse and respiration were near normal.

He stated his belief that pneumonia symptoms had been arrested temporarily but that the big slugger was in a weakened condition and would have to remain in bed several days.

THE PAS TEAMS TAKE LEAD

Walter Grayson, Driving Champion Morgan Team, Is First at Start.

BANFF, Alta., March 3.—Charles Stabback, Winnipeg, picked up a two and a half mile lead on other racers in the third lap of the Banff dog derby. The race is 100 miles.

BANFF, Alta., March 3.—The Pas dog teams took an early lead in the Banff 100 mile dog derby at 10 a. m. today, but being unused to the high altitude the valley dogs were handicapped.

Walter Grayson, driving the champion Morgan team of The Pas, was first at the start. His team has won three Hudson Bay derbies. Tom Creighton, Sam Pranteau and Shorty Russick, all from Manitoba, were next in line. Sixteen teams were in the running, with the weather perfect and the track fine.

GUARANTY CASE IS NEXT

OMAHA, March 3.—The next big mail fraud case to be tried in federal court will be that of the Guaranty Securities company, March 20, in which Willard V. Mathews, Thomas H. Matters and twenty-two others are charged with conspiracy to defraud and with using the mails to defraud.

Sale of Colonial Timber company stock thru the American State bank and other agencies is the basis on which the government founds its charges of fraud, according to Special Assistant District Attorney W. C. Dorsey, who will try the case.

Among the defendants are:

Willard V. Mathews (now in Nebraska penitentiary), and Dr. Alexander L. Mathews, his father, Callaway, Neb.; Charles H. Rogers, iLncoln; Harris B. Fuller, David City; Walter L. Stickel, Kearney; Harold E. Cozier of Omaha, and Ed G. Smith of Auburn, Neb.

FRENCH APPROACHING FRANKFURT

WILL PRESS SUGAR FIGHT

Brookhart Determined to Force Resolution Thru.

COMMERCE BUREAU APPROVES

Market Gamblers Said to Circulate False Stories.

Upward Market Movements in Face of Demands for Investigation Add Supporters to Iowa Senator.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Attempting to rush thru the authorization for a senatorial investigation of soaring sugar prices, the senate committee on audit and control today ordered a favorable report on the Brookhart resolution.

Senator Brookhart, Iowa, progressive, attempted to obtain some change in the resolution in meeting of the committee so as to make the probe more broad. It was decided, however, that the chances of passage would be hindered by any additional clauses, and Brookhart agreed to let the resolution stand as introduced.

Senator Calder, chairman of the committee, announced he would attempt to force action as soon as he could get the floor.

The investigation is favored by the department of commerec which holds that market gamblers are forcing up prices by circulating false stories of short crops, and attempting to credit these reports to official American and Cuban sources.

If senate leaders don't voluntarily allow his resolution to come up, Brookhart is prepared to force action. The upward market movements yesterday in the face of Brookhart's demands for the investigation have strengthened the feeling in the senate in support of the resolution.

COLORED BOXERS PETITION

Ask Governor for Right to Fight White Men Under State Boxing Law.

Governor Bryan has been asked by colored men of Omaha to overrule the decision of his predecessor in office in the matter of prohibiting mixed bouts. The colored men allege there is grave discrimination because the athletic commissioner will not permit white and colored men to mix in the same boxing bout. Secretary H. H. Antles, of the department of public welfare, and Governor McKelvie, head of that department, refused to change the present rules prohibiting mixed bouts. James C. Dahlman, mayor of Omaha, an other residents signed a petition which was presented to Governor McKelvie and rejected has been presented to Governor Bryan. The governor has taken no action but he thinks the petition looks as if many prominent people believe there is discrimination against colored boxers. The former administration decided that for the good of boxing mixed bouts ought to be prohibited. It is said the boxers have no rights not granted them by the licensing power of the state boxing commissioner and that constitutional rights are not involved.

DOOMED TO DISAPPOINTMENT

Cotesfied Shippers Want Railroad Ordered to Put in Live Stock Scales.

A petition signed by a hundred or more business men and shippers was filed with the state railway commission Saturday asking for an order upon the Union Pacific railroad company to put in scales for weighing live stock at Cotesfield. The commission is without authority, says Secretary Curtis, to make such an order, the federal supreme court having held that the furnishing scales for weighing live stock is no part of transportation facilities. and that, therefore, a railroad company cannot be required to install and maintain them.

The reason is that live stock are weighed at the point of destination, and that these weights are the ones that govern rates and returns o shippers. Local scales are desired by, in making shipments to get the carload rate, and it is desirable that each knows his proportion of the total weights.

CROUSE AWARDED A DOLLAR

Claimed He Had Entered Into Verbal Agreement for Bonus for His Services.

A jury in district court has awarded James Crouse, a bridge building foreman, $1 against the Pioneer Construction company as a result of evidence offered by Mr. Crouse in his lawsuit for $2,370, claimed due for services.

Mr. Crouse worked ninety-one weeks for the company, building bridges in Kansas, Nebraska and South Dakota. He was paid a flat rate of $30 a week and expenses. He claimed that when he was hired by the company one of its agents offered him a bonus in addition to the flat salary, but that the bonus was never paid. The company denied making any agreement to pay him a bonus, and said he had been paid all his services were worth.

SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE WALLACE FORBIDS A MERGER

Secretary Wallace & J. Ogden Armour

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace has notified J. Ogden Armour, head of Armour & company, that he will not permit the Armour interests to take over Morris & company, declaring this proposed merger of the two great packing businesses would create a combination in restraint of trade.

CONFERENCE CALLS MANY

More than four hundred camp fire girls and guardians from out of the city are in Lincoln for the camp fire girls' district conference Saturday at the city auditorium. Even the rain did not dampen the spirits of the girls and every out of town delegation that was expected had arrived by Saturday noon.

A few short talks and discussions by the girls took up the morning session. Registration and viewing of the handcraft exhibition opened the program. The exhibit contains almost every variety of handcraft work done by camp fire girls and includes a large showing of ceremonial gowns, with dresses and aprons, hats, fancy work, batik, candles and wax work, decorated articles, wood work, leather articles, baskets, oil and water color paintings, posters, and a cake from the camp at the orthopedic hospital. Handcrafts awards will be made at the grand council fire at the First Christian church aSturday evening, when the other special honors will be awarded.

Mrs. Charles Robbins of Chicago led a period of community singing, with Indian calls and songs. Mrs. Robbins is an authority on camp fire music. She teaches all the songs from the solemn ceremonial music to the gayest songs. When the girls first arrived at the auditorium she had them all running around in the building going thru exercises, because the auditorium was not very warm. At intervals during the morning Mrs. Robbins took charge and put the girls thru a series of exercises.

A. S. Doxsal, president of the Lincoln camp fire council, gave the adress sof welcome at the opening of the conference. Miss Lola Duncan, Lincoln camp fire executive, also welcomed the girls.

The guardians attending the conference went to the First Congregational church for their section, and Miss Gladys Shamp of Omaha acted as chairman there. Miss Martha Morton of Nebraska City presided at the section for the girls, held in the auditorium.

"Double Our Work!" was the first round table discussion. "Our Camp Fire Honors" was the subject for the girls section. There Miss Martha Morton spoke of handcraft honors and Miss Jean Berger of Omaha told the girls about nature honors. A general discussion of honors, by the girls, followed the talks. In the guardians section Mrs. P. F. Teal discussed "Symbolism—How and Why We Use it in Camp Fire." A discussion on Camp Fire honors was led by Miss Ethel Myers of Manhattan, Kas.

"Double Our Health" was the sub-

SNOW IN NORTHWEST AND SOME RAIN FARTHER EAST.

Three to Six Inches of Snow in the Black Hills and Northern Wyoming and Snow Still Falling There.

Snow fell over the Black Hills and northern Wyoming region during Friday night and was continuing in that part of the northwest at 8 o'clock Saturday moring. Burlington railroad reports at that time showed a sleet causing wire trouble west of Aurora in Nebraska, rain falling in some localities in the central part of the state, Omaha, Lincoln and Seward reporting light showers falling, more appropriately described as a drizzling rain.

The weather bureau reports showed no precipitation at any Nebraska station. Sheridan, Wyo., however, had had a considerable fall of moisture, the snow measuring nearly three-quarters of an inch of water. More than a third of an inch had fallen at Rapid City on the eastern edge of the Black Hills. Lander had received nearly a quarter of an inch of water, while as far south as Grand Junction, Col., .06 of an inch was recorded. Cheyenne and Denver reported no moisture fall at 8 a. m.

Burlington reports showed from three to six inches of snow over its Black Hills and northern Wyoming lines with the snow fall continuing hard over the Sheridan division.

Reports in the afternoon from a number of Nebraska towns showed a considerable rain had fallen in the central part of the state, some places reporting more than half an inch. The rain came slowly, being a drizzle that lasted over from early morning until in the afternoon.

OMAHA, March 3.—Today's rains in Nebraska are worth the proverbial million dollars to Nebraska farmers, according to George A. Roberts, Omaha grain man. The downpours have caused the farmers to become optimistic again, he said.

The rains are general thruout Nebraska, Kansas an dOklahoma wheat belts. The hardest downpours occurred in central and western Nebraska.

Rain started falling here shortly after 8 a. m. and weather forecaster Robins predicted it would turn to snow and that the moisture would continue intermittently today and tomorrow.

Hastings reported a quarter of an inch had fallen upto 8 a. m. Kearney reported the rain there had turned to a heavy sleet this morning. Grand Island and other central and western Nebraska towns reported showers.

BEATRICE, Neb., March 3.—A heavy rain which commenced falling in this vicinity this morning bids fair to contnue thruout the day. The moisture was badly needed, as winter wheat in all sections of the county is reported to have been damaged as a result of the long dry spell. In some parts of the county farmers, who had commenced their spring plowing, reported some moisture in the ground.

DRIVERS VIOLATE THE LAW

Many Complaints Reach Mayor About Interfering With Funeral Processions.

Mayor Zehrung has received a number of complaints concerning vehicle drivers, who interfere with funeral processions. A woman was the latest complainant. She said that several automobiles interupted a funeral procession and she thought that something ought to be done by the police. She got the number of one driver.

Mayor Zehrung has instructed the police to make prompt arrests when the city ordinance is violated. The mayor thought that common decency should stop drivers from such practices. He pointed out that policemen cannot see all such violations or there would be a great many more arrests.

Chief Johnson said that a driver was summoned into police court Saturday morning for this offense. He was not fined but required to pay the costs. The police have the name of another driver and he has been summoned to the station. An ordinance provides for a fine in case of conviction.

BILLS SIGNED BY GOVERNOR

Measure Tendering State Home for Soldiers to Federal Government Is on List.

During the legislative recess Governor Bryan signed the following house bills:

H. R. 117, by Rourke, directing the governor to tender to the federal government the state home for soldiers at Grand Island for use as a hospital to be maintained on condition that the veterans and wives shall continue to be cared for.

H. R. 156, by Allan, fixing the pay of coroner's jurors at $3 a day.

H. R. 182, Osterman, amending the procedure for issuance of bonds for sewer construction in cities of the second class and villages.

H. R. 172, by Dyhall, authorizing art and educational corporations to exercise right of eminent domain, a bill amending an act passed two years ago

THE WEATHER.

APPEAL FROM BIG VERDICT

THIRTY-SIX THOUSAND WAS JUDGMENT OF TRIAL JURY.

Case Involves Sale of Colorado Lands That Plaintiff Says Were Misrepresented to Him by Defendants.

Oscar F. Olson, D. R. Jones, the D. R. Jones Land company and the Farmers Land & Cattle company have appealed to the supreme court from a judgment obtained in Douglas county against them by Charles Hanneman. The land company owned a large tarct in Cheyenne county, Col. that was sold to Hanneman under the representation that it was worth $32.50 an acre, that it was valuable for agricultural and had not been developed previously because no one had promoted it.

Hanneman claimed in the lower court that the defendants had entered into a conspiracy to cheat and defraud him, and asked judgment in the sum of $63,200. The jury gave him a judgment for $36,000.

John Schmer has filed an appeal from a judgment of a jury in Clay county in favor of his next door neighbor, Robert J. Wilson. The latter claimed that Schmer, or some one acting for him, had come upon his lot and destroyed five trees worth $850 and raspberry and currant bushes worth $150. The trees and bushes were along the boundary fence in the town of Harvard. Schmer claimed that they were on his land, the fence being misplaced. Wilson said that they had been on his side of the fence for more than ten years, which settled the question of possession of the disputed strip.

The Northwestern railroad company has appealed from a Lancaster county district court judgment for $62, which also carried with it an allowance of $50 for attorney fees. James a Hayward, a telegraph operator, had been laid off by the company pending investigation of charges made against him, and the money he claied represented pay for the time that he was thus off duty. The company claimed that he was guilty of whatever it was he was charged with and that it put him back on again out of a desire to be nice to him. He said that the rules of the telegraphers' union gave him the right to pay when under suspension if he were put back on again after investigation, and that this formed a part of his contract of employment.

PLAN ACTION ON M'NARY

Nomination for Comptroller of Currency to Be Placed Before Executive Session of Senate.

WASHINGTON, March 3. — The nomination of James G. McNary, southwestern banker, to be comptroller of the currency, was ordered favorably reported to the senate today by the banking and currency committee, and will be placed before the senate in executive session this afternoon.

IS GOVERNOR REACTIONARY

HE TELLS OF VOLUNTARY REFERENDUM ON JUDGESHIP.

Says Attorneys Are Like Others, for Friends and Against Foes, All in the Name of Justice.

It was a rainy day and Governor Bryan having no news to make public gave reporters a discourse Saturday on reactionaries. This term he had often applied to others, but he had seen an intimation in a morning newspaper published in Lincoln that if those who want to disagree with him desired to do so they could call him a reactionary because he had abandoned Governor McKelvie's plan of taking a referendum vote of attorneys when he is called upon to appoint a district judge.

Replying to questions, some of which were leading and called for a conclusion Governor Bryan said in substance:

"From what I have heard of the former plan the expression of the bar was not binding upon the governor in the making of an appointment and that lawyers were permitted to pass upon only only certain candidates for appointment and also that the vote cast did not always tally with the vote as canvassed.

"I am importuned by insurance men to appoint certain persons at the head of the bureau of insurance or insurance examiners. The bankers tell me who to name at the head of the banking department. Engineers and contractors over the state are very much interested in the appointment of state engineer. If all organizations are to select appointees where does the governor come in? What is left for the governor to do. I believe it is the governor's place to stand between organizations and the people.

"I have been fully advised by the bar in the fourth district, comprising Burt, Washington and Douglas counties in regard to applicants for the vacancy to be caused by the election of Judge W. G. Sears to congress. I have one petition with 300 names. I have also had the pleasure of receiving personal expressions from seventy-five or 100 attorneys who have offered me the benefit of their opinion. I have already before me what might be termed a referendum. I find the bar is like other organizations. It is in for its friends and against its enemies, all in the name of justice."

"The people in the first instance elect their judges and I find they do not always elect persons recommended by the bar. So I suppose the people are reactionary. If they are I am one of them."

The governor was quoted by Dr. Hall in a public meeting recently held in the senate chamber as being willing at one time to appoint any one of nine applicants he had for head of the banking department if the state bankers would only say which of the nine it desired, or he would appoint any other person the bankers desired, but he does not intend to take a referendum vote of attorneys on the matter of Judge Sears' successor. The governor's offer to bankers was later withdrawn, acording to Dr. Hall.

In regard to the referendum which he now has before him in the matter of the judgeship the governor declined to say whether he would make public the result of the referendum. He said it was a voluntary referendum and on second thought he said some of the lawyers had petitioned for two different applicants. He took this to mean not that his referendum was worthless but merely that some attorneys desired to vote twice.

In regard to the influence of insurance and other organizations the governor admitted he had not recommended the repeal of the law which requires fire insurance companies to pay the salary of a state appointee, the state fire marshal and all expenses of his office.

Governor Bryan said he had not yet received Judge Sears' resignation. A delegation headed by E. E. Howell of Omaha, called on the governor Friday to ask for the appointment of Elmer Thomas. There were four in the delegation, one of them being Mr. Dodge. Telegrams, letters and telephone calls are still coming in.

MYSTERY WOMAN IS NAMED

Former Wife of Frederick Schneider Declares He Lived in Fear of Life.

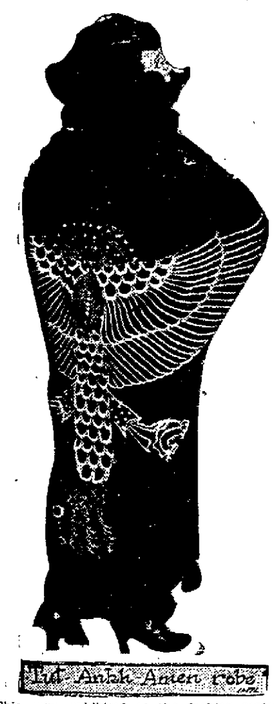

NEW YORK, March 3.—A mystery woman, believed to be she who murdered Frederick Schneider, wealthy contractor, and slipped away leaving him bent over the wheel of his automobile, has been named to the police by the slain man's widow.

Breaking a silence regarding her suspicions of the murderess, Mrs. Schneider disclosed the fact that she and her husband had long lived in daily fear for their lives. She revealed that Schneider had planned an "elopement" to California with her—they had been living apart for several years—and expressed belief that jealousy of the other woman caused the murder.

PARTY CIRCLE STILL ALIVE

RUMORED THAT SENATE LIKELY TO THROW HARPOON.

Amended Measure on General File in House Represents Ideas of a Certain Senator Who Changed Mind.

Friends of H. R. 103, Mears-Osterman bill abolishing the party circle, are not overly optimistic in their thoughts of what the senate will do with it. They believe the house will pass the measure but some of them express the opinion that the vote may be reasonably close.

A certain senator came down with this circle chasing idea in mind. He caused a bill to be drawn and then changed his mind. It was never introduced. When J. Reid Green questioned the manner in which the Mears- Osterman bill was drawn, the introducers set about to fix it. By accident, they discovered that a senator had deserted a bill prepared for him by the legislative reference bureau. It was a bill without defect. It was appropriated by the house members and will appear in full as an amendment to H. R. 103.

The senate records, however, disclose that a party circle bill dropped in the hopper at the west end of the hall. It is listed as S. F. 313 and carries the names of Senators Osborne and McGowan. Nothing has been heard of it since the initial appearance.

Another measure of considerable interest now od house general file is H. R. 318, by Charles L. Yochum of Otoe. This is in the form of a joint and concurrent resolution accepting Arbor Lodge for use as a state park. The house standing committee attached an amendment which provides that the state park board may use the Morton mansion as a museum of nature if it deems this advisable.

H. R. 184, soldier bill, stands at the head of the general file. Just below it is H. R. 246, ice cream bill by Representative Miner of Buffalo. This measure has been laid over from time to time but will be argued in committee of the whole early in the week. It proposes to reduce the butter fat content of ice cream from fourteen to twelve per cent and of fruit creams, from twelve to ten per cent. Nebraska manufacturers contend that they cannot successfully compete with those of bordering states under present standards.

The Jacoby inheritance tax bill is ready for third reading. This doubles the present tax on inheritances except in the case of direct heirs.

FINED ON LIQUOR CHARGE

Peter Schwindt, 1226 North Ninth, was fined $100 and costs Saturday morning by Police Judge E. B. Chappell. Mr. Schwindt pleaded guilty to charges of illegal possession and manufacture of liquor. He made arrangements for payment.

The home of Mr. Schwindt was raided late Friday afternoon by Captain Anderson, Detective Schneible and Officer Towle. According to the officers, a still was discovered in operation there. Over one hundred gallons of mash, a quantity of hooch and the still were confiscated.

THREE MORE CITIES IN RUHR ARE SEIZED

Customs Also Taken Over by the Invaders.

OCCUPATION EFFECTED SWIFTLY

Two Hundred and Fifty German "Green Police" Marched Away to Unknown Destination by the French.

PARIS, March 3.—Announcing officially the occupation of parts of Mannheim, Karlsruhe and Darmstadt today the French government stated that thus far only the Rhine ports of the first two cities and he railroad workshops in he last had been seized.

The occupation is in reprisal for recent acts of sabotage in the Ruhr and Rhineland, the French announced. The entire cities will be occupied if sabotage continues.

BERLIN, March 3.—French today occupied two of the most important industrial centers of the Rhine valley —Mannheim and Darmstadt.

Somewhat later, Karlsruhe, further to the south, was also taken by the French.

The advance of several companies which seized these cities puts the French much nearer to Frankfurt and the Germans fear this city may next be taken.

About 300 troops were used in the occupation of Mannheim, 200 of these bringing their baggage and camping out in the Hilda school house, while others scattered thruout industrial quarters.

At Darmstadt a company of white French troops, and, according to reports from German sources, one of colored, marched into the city and confiscated railroad work shops.

LEON HINES GOES TO PEN

Forger Who Pleaded Guilty Lays His Trouble on Habit of Using Narcotics.

Leon Hines, self confessed forger, was taken to the penitentiary Saturday morning by Deputy Sheriff Ward to begin serving a term of from one to twenty years. Hines forged a check for $25, signing the name G. H. Hines, made it payable to himself, and presented it to the Central National bank for payment February 5.

While being taken to the penitentiary Saturday morning Mr. Hines laid the blame for his predicament upon the use of "dope." He declared that the stuff is so expensive, often costing $20 a day, that a man of moderate means cannot keep himself supplied without resorting to means to acquire more money than he can honestly earn.

BIG PART IN GREAT WORK

Dr. Wilkinson Compliments Life Insurance Men for Part in Conserving Life.

Rev. H. S. Wilkinson, pastor of Grace Methodist church, complimented the life insurance companies of the country for the part they had taken in the past in helping conserving American life in a brief address to the Lincoln life underwriters' association at its monthly luncheon at the chamber of commerce aSturday.

Mr. Wilkinson said that men of his profession as well as life insurance men were engaged in a great work of conservation and protection. The old idea of th epreachers that their task was to prepare men and women for another life has given way to the modern conception that has to do with life on this earth. By the adoption of health standards and their teaching of their value the life insurance companies had lengthened the span of human life fifteen years in the last century.

The speaker mentioned also the work the life insurance companies had performed in strengthening the hands of those who had worked for and secured prohibition by their policy of conserving human life, a policy, he said, that in spite of all that is being said has met with a good deal of success.

Dr. Wilkinson has just returned from a week spent at Cleevland, in attendance upon the council of cities, and spoke at some lentgh on the success with which city problems, particularly those of the immigrant, are being solved. He said that it is now held that there is no element of the city problem that crushes the hopes of reformers for the reason that in some city somewhere it has been solved and needs only application to the others.

A vote of thanks was rendered Dr. Wilkinson who had substituted, on very short notice for A. G. Wolfenbarger, who was kept at home by illness.

On motion of Oak E. Davis, President Keefer will appoint a committee to work up a big delegation that expects to attend the sales congress at Omaha April 2d in a special car.

DEFEAT COURT MOVE.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—The senate today refused to consider American adhesion to the permanent court of international justice at this session. On a motion by Senator King to take up his resolution approving American membership, in confority with President Harding's request, the senate voted forty-nine to twenty-four against consideration.

POWER PLANT NOW RUNNING

FIRE UNDER BOILERS STARTED BY COMMISSIONER.

Building With Its Machinery Cost $307,000 With Double Capacity of the Old Equipment at A Stroke.

Noth[illegible] new municipal power plant at [illegible]hen treet water and light station will soon begin to function. Promptly at 1:15 Friday afternoon with simple ceremonies, Commissioner William Schroeder, head of the department applied the match which started fires under the two new huge boilers. It will be ten days perhaps two weeks before the new plant will be in operation. Commissioner Schroeder said that because of damage to the new machinery it is necessary to keep slow fires going for a certain period. When the old boilers are cooled they will be taken out, one at a time, and installed in the new building.

The new power plant is more than twice as large as the old plant and its equipment will be ample to double the power formerly available for serving water and electric light patrons. Plenty of room has been provided for the installation of additional machinery. Room, for instance, is provided for a 10,000,000 gallon pump. The old power house had a square surface of 11,400 feet while the new one has a square surface of 25,000 feet. The new plant represents an investment of $307,000, $107,000 for the building and $200,000 for the machinery. Its dimensions are 185 feet by 114 feet. It is built with a view to take care of the increasing demands of the city.

"The original plans made by Kansas City architects were changed some," said Commissioner Schroeder. "For instance, the plant was made longer. Much credit is due to City Engineer George Bates and Plant Engineer Johnson for the good work that they have done. What they accomplished saved the city thousands of dollars."

Commissioner Schroeder does not seek any credit for what has been accomplished. The other commissioners have congratulated him on the successful accomplishment of the big project. Getting down to bare figures the two big boilers, including installation, cost $21,330. They are each 500 horse power against 150 horse power for the old boilers. Two stokers cost $6,917. An "economizer", installed for the purpose of making a great saving of fuel cost $16,222.

WETS FORMING NEW PLANS

Senator Edge Announces He Will Bring 3 Per Cent Beer Bill Before New Congress.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—With the life of the present congress fast waning, wets in the senate already are making plans to loosen up the Volstead act in the next congress.

Senator Edge, New Jersey republican, announced he would bring a 3 per cent beer bill before the new congress. Politicians regard this announcement as an effort by Edge to rally the wet support which swept former Governor Edwards of New Jersey into the senate.

FIVE VICTIMS ARE MISSING

SIX BODIES RECOVERED FROM POCAHONTAS MINE.

Twenty-seven Miners Rescued, But Wounds of Several Reported Fatal—Seventy-five in Pit at Time of Blast.

ARISTA, W. Va., March 3.—Ten bodies had been recovered in the Pocahontas coal mine at 11 a. m. today.

Rescue workers today brought up the bodies of four addition workers who perished with six others when a triple coal dust explosion wrecked the workings of the mine yesterday.

All seventy-five workmen, repairing the mine when the blasts occurred, are now accounted for. Then are dead and twenty-five injured. Forty escaped unhurt.

BLUEFIELD, W. Va., March 13.—Entombed behind a wall of rock, coal and slate for fifteen hours, Lloyd Lipscomb, one of the miners caught in the blast which wrecked the mine of the Weyanoke Coal and Coke company yesterday, was brought to the surface today by rescue workers.

Lipscomb was able to go to his home after being given first aid.

BLUEFIELD, W. Va., March 3.—With six bodies recovered and five men still missing, rescue workers early today pushed far back into the workings of the Pocahontas coal mine at Arista, wrecked yesterday by what its officials believe was an overcharge of dynamite.

Thirty-eight miners were entombed by the blast. Twenty-seven have been rescued and rushed to hospitals. Wounds of several are said to be fatal.

Seventy-five men were working in the mine at the time of the blast.

Officials expressed the belief that the five miners still missing have perished. After-damp is believed to have flooded the section of the mine in which they are entombed.

BRIGAND SHOWS HUMANITY

PARIS.—(By Mail.)—Corsican brigands have a feeling of humanity and Corsican peasants ahve a sense of humor. Both were displayed after a recent ariplane accident which cost the lives of four passengers when the machine in which they were flying from the south of France to Ajaccio, the capital of the island, crashed a few miles from its destination.

Two hours after the accident police were on the scene. They were astounded to find the bodies of the four victims ranged in line some distance from the wreck of the airplane, their faces covered with pieces of cloth. their money and other valuables lying beside them. Nearby was the wireless operator of the machine, who was badly wounded but alive. His injuries had been attended to by a master hand at giving first aid.

"Romanetti, the bandit, was the first to arrive after the accident," peasants told the police. "He ordered us to keep watch over the money until you arrived."

"He might have waited," said one of the policemen. "We would have liked to thank him."

"Oh," retorted the peasant with a malicious grin. "He is too modest. He preferred not to wait for your thanks."

TO IGNORE BRITISH NOTE

State Department to Take No Cognizance of Curzon Reply to Newcastle Communication.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—The United States government will ignore the latest British note in reply to Secretary Hughes' sharp announcement that the American consulate at Newcastle would not be reopened. It was declared authoritatively at the state department today.

The department today had not yet received the text of the Curzon note but no doubt was left that so far as this government was concerned the incident was ended. The consulate at Newcastle will remain closed, it was stated.

ADMITS SEVERAL ROBBERIES

Fremont Boy Sent Back to State Industrial School.

FREMONT, Neb., March 3.—Otto Hornyak, thirteen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gustav Hornyak, of this city, was re-committed to the state industrial school following his confession of several petty thieveries that have puzzled the police department the past number of weeks.

Young Thielen was caught in a local garage a few nights ago. He explained to the police that he had entered the place to return a sum of money he had stolen. He was released upon this excuse but re-arrested and questioned concerning other robberies. The boy finally admitted several other thefts. He had opened a separate bank account unknown to his parents and deposited eight dollars up to date, the result of his plunderings. He was paroled from the bench in November 1922 following his confession of robbing a local grocery store.

Freight traffic on railroads, which has been unknown for about seasonal records ever since January 1, is expected now to make the record-breaking volume.

SEVENTY-SEVEN-YEAR-OLD HEADS CORPORATION

Mrs. Charles H. Jones, seventy-seven years old, has been elected to the presidency of the Northwestern Lumber company, a $1,000,000 corporation of Tacoma, Wash., succeeding her deceased husband. Mrs. Jones was born in Jay, N. Y. She is a stanch prohibitionist and does not believe that women should smoke.

A. C. SMITH, OMAHA, PNEUMONIA VICTIM

OMAHA, Neb., March 3.—Arthur Crittenden Smith, sixty, chairman of the board of directors of M. E. Smith and company died early this morning from pneumonia which developed from a severe attack of grip which he contracted a week ago.

Smith was one of the best known business men in the west. He was active in civic, patriotic and social affairs. He had served as president of the chamber of commerce and had been a member of the board of directors of that organization since 1903. He was also a member of the board of directors of the Omaha National bank and of the Burgess-Nash company. He was king of Ak-Sar-Ben in 1909.

He was also member of all the important clubs in Omaha.

Smith was born in Cincinnati, Courtland county, New York, October 13, 1863 and came to Omaha in 1868.

THREE RUM RUNNERS KILLED

JELLICO, Tenn., March 3.—Three alleged rumrunners were killed and four officers were wounded in a brisk battle during the night on Pine Mountain near here.

The officers intercepted the whisky carriers as they neared Jellico with a supply of liquor. The bootleggers opened fire and the officers replied.

After the brief gun fight the dead were identified as George Perkins, Walter Perkins and Morrison Ayres.

Officers wounded were: Prohibition Agent W. S. Jaynes of Tazewell; Police Chief Heatherly of Tazewell, and Deputy Sheriffs Covey and Perry. Covey's condition is critical.

JUNK LICENST FOR MARKS.

NEW YORK, March 3.—Fritz Schneider asked police for a license to sell German marks. "Why don't you go to the license bureau?" he was asked. "I did, but they told me to come here and get a junk license."

CLEAR AWAY MAJOR BILLS

CONGRESS IS PREPARING FOR AN ADJOURNMENT.

Conference Reports on Farm Credits and Third Deficiency Bill Only Measures of Importance Remaining.

WASHINGTON March 3—With the clatter and bang that has become habitual with expiring congresses, the sixty-seventh congress today was noisily working its way to the finish. There was no reason except the constitutional limitation why congress could not have met at 11 a. m. today and adjourned at noon. Its work was virtually done.

Nevertheless, a tremendous show of energy was being made in both houses. For the first time in years, the ending of congress found the decks clear of major legislation. Only two bills of importance were left today to be acted on—the conference reports on farm credits and the third deficiency bill. The log jam was cleared away when the senate's filibuster against ship subsidy ended, and since then many bill have slipped quietly down smooth waters, into a haven.

Many members seemed a bit bored with the undramatic death of the present congress some already have gone home, not caring to wait for the final curtain.

Many small bills still bobbed about today on the surface of the legislative waters, while congressional lumberjacks did their best to pole them into positions where they would be built into the "raft of legislation" which will make up the record of this congress.

"If we cannot have drama with our adjournament, let us have a few helpful little bills, that will be duly appreciated back home," remarked Pat Harrison, commenting on the last minute rush to get private and local measures thru.

"This is the time you want to watch for snakes," warned a wise old senate attache, as he fingered a thick pile of bills, all of which had passed in recent days without anybody except their authors knowing what was in them. "Snakes" is congressional idiom for doubtful legislation.

Party leaders arranging today for the final hours, found it would be necessary to kill some time. Two or three bills that have small chance of passage will be thrown into the breach to fill up the gaps and keep out some of the importunate ones whose bills have not found favor.

After spending all of today and a good part of tonight in gathering up the legislative loose ends, both houses will recess until 11 a. m. Sunday. President Harding will go to the capitol then to sign any last minute legislation. At noon the gavels if Vice President Coolidge and Speaker Gillette, descending smartly, will rap out the final adjournment and the end of two years of almost continuous legislative activity.

SAYS ECTOPLASM WAS SHOWN

Conan Doyle Reports That Medium Emitted Substance Before 100 Scientists.

NEW YORK, March 3.—Demonstration of ectoplasm, the intangible substance declared by certain spiritualists to be emitted by mediums, before a group of 100 leading Austrian scientists, was announced by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle in a letter published in the New York Times today. Thirteen seances were held, Sir Arthur wrote, at which Dr. Shrenck-Notzing of Munich, demonstrated with Willy S., a young German medium, and convinced skeptics and bitter opponents of his theory that the claims of spiritualists that ectoplasm exists are true.

Sir Arthur's letter, which was a reply to his critics, said in part:

"I have received the report of the recent demonstration by Dr. Shrenck-Notzing, at Munich, which surely puts an end to the whole debate, so that any one who reopens it is inexcusably ignorant or wilfully perverse. * * * Of the 100 men (who witnessed the demonstration), twenty-three are university professors, including Zimmer, Beecher, Kalker, Freytag, Salzer, Caretz, Pauli, Vanino, Huber, Hartogs, Hellner and Geiger, some of whom verified their results in as many as thirteen seances. A detailed account of the experiments is promised in the next number of the Revue Metaphysique of Paris.

"So that seems to be settled, as clearly as any matter can be settled, but we can hardly leave it without pointing the moral. We were publicly assured by Professor Jastrow, Mr. Black of Montreal, and, I am sorry to say, by my friend, Houdini, that this was all what they called 'bunk' and that what we observed was really regurgitated food. In vain we pointed out (on the occasion of demonstrations with the famous medium, Eva) that the substance was white, whereas the medium had been made to swallow carmine. My last mails fro the states still bring me absurd assertions that it was regurgitated food.

"Criticism is most welcome and helpful, but I would beg our opponents to exercise some restraint in it, or they make the subject and themselves rather ridiculous."

25 YEARS AGO TODAY

George Dethlefs, who was spending a vacation at home in Lincoln, received word that he had been accepted as one of the principal soloists at the fall season of concerts at Crystal palace in London.

Ex-postmaster J. H. Harley compiled statistics showing that forty-five people were employed in the Lincoln postoffice as compared with fifteen in 1884 and that orders issued and paid in 1897 amounted to $115,169.

Judge Neville picked the two prettiest women in Nebraska and planned to have the two profiles adorn the trans-Mississippi medal. They were Miss O'Shea of Lincoln and Miss Harmer of Syracuse.

A clothing store in Lincoln was advertising men's suits, the lowest at ten dollars, the highest at twenty. Another company advertised coverl cloth spring overcoats for men at $5.95 each.

REGENTS TO MEET TUESDAY.

The University of Nebraska board of regents will meet Tuesday to consider plans for the stadium and any other matters that may come up. It is expected that contracts for the stadium construction will be ready to award soon after the meeting.

This is the first exclusive photograph of Reginald C. Vanderbilt and his fiancee, Miss Gloria Morgan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Morgan. Mr. Morgan is minister to Brussels. The picture was taken on the terrace of the Westchester-Biltmore Country club, at Rye, N. Y.

WOMAN CONVICT IS FREED

JOLIET, Ill., March 3.—May Clark, prettiest woman convict at Joliet penitentiary when she entered four years ago, was freed today in order to devote her life to Red Cross work.

The woman was convicted of perjury when she attempted to establish an alibi for a notorious gang of robbers with whom she was associated in 1918, including "Gus" Zeidler and Alexander McKeown, when they were on trial for robbing a bank at Madison, Ill.

Miss Clark devoted her time in prison to work for the blind. She is an expert in writing Braille characters for the sightless and under directions of the New York Red Cross, transcribed classics for blind soldiers. Immediately upon her release she left to join Red Cross workers for the blind in the east.

"Teddy" Clark, notorious bank robber to whom the woman was married, was found murdered. It developed he had been slain when he objected to his small share of the loot in the robbery of the Madison bank.

GANNA OFFERS HER HELP

Volunteers to Aid Russian Grand Opera Company, Opening Third Week in Chicago Season.

CHICAGO, March 3.—Ganna Walska McCormick, Polish diva, today offered to "help out" the Russian Grand Opera company, which opens the third week of its season here Monday.

Ganna drifted into her hometown, unheralded and unsung, from her eastern concert tour last night. Accompanied by Mrs. Emmons Blaine, sister of Harold McCormick, and her manager, Jules Daiber, the Polish star attended the Russian opera.

After the performance, Daiber approached S. Hurok, manager, and said that since Bourskaya, star of the company, had left to join a New York company and last night was Chaliapin's last apeparance, Ganna Walska might lend a hand as a "guest artist" for a few performances.

Hurok called Leo Feodoroff, impresario, into the conference but the result was not announced.

FIND LITHUANIAN'S PROGENY.

LONDON, March 3.—A direct descendant of the Lithuanian grand duke, Gedymin the Great, has been found after more than three years of search. This scion of an ancient royal house is sixty and lives at Kovno, where he is employed as a bank clerk. Gedymin the Great threw open his barbarous territories to western culture, protected Christianity, built Vilna, his capital, in 1321, and successfully defended his realm from the Teutonic knights. He died in 1324.

NEBRASKAN'S CASE IS A TYPICAL ONE

Ten Alleged Bunco Men at Los Angeles Were Caught While Working J. P. Larson of Marquette.

Ten men arrested in a roundup of asserted confidence men will be hosts at an involuntary reception in the county jail, it was decided by detectives of the district attorney's office, who are investigating the asserted attempt to bunco J P. Larson, a farmer of Marquette, Neb., out of $17,000, says the Los Angeles Times of Monday. Further that paper said.

Clark Kirkman, in charge of bunko investigations for the district attorney, and Investigator Charles Reimer and W F J. Weiss of the Burns detective agency, who arrested the ten men, sent out to call yesterday to various persons who have been swindled out of large sums of money. The asserted victims of bunco men have been asked to visit the county jail today to see whether any one of the ten under arrest were among the asserted confidence men who swindled them.

Two investigators, under direction of Mr Kirkman occupied the two apartments at 1046 South Grand avenue, where most of the men were arrested Monday night, and waited for others to enter.

During the night a man giving the name of C. H. Horner rapped on the door of one of the apartments and was surprised to find an investigator. Horner was arrested and taken to the county jail. He was held on suspicion. His arrest made the number taken reach ten. The others gave the names of William Burek, alias Mann; W. A. Johnson, John William, C. D Cryer, James Gilber, J. C. Burns, A. R Turner, C. A. Cooper and Samuel Johnson.

It was stated at the district attorney's office that as soon as Judge Avery calls the 1923 grand jury, the facts regarding the attempt to fleece Mr. Larsen in an asserted fake race track deal will be placed before the inquisitorial body. W. A. Johnson, who was arrested in Mr. Larsen's room at the Huntington hotel, Eighth and Main streets, and William Burke, who was identified by the would-be victim as one of the three asserted confidence men who are said to have prepared for fleecing him, are being held on suspicion of attempting grand larceny. The finale of the scheme, which was interrupted by the detectives, was to have taken place Monday afternoon, it was stated.

Adolph Strunkel, a former farmer of Sterling, Neb., who was buncoed out of $700 in an asserted fake stock deal, was asked to look over the ten now in jail. Mr. Struenkel was met by a stranger on Spring street and eventually sent to San Antonio, Tex., to get his "winnings." He never saw the bunco men again.

Thomas Donohue, retired cabinetmaker of Altoona, Pa., will visit the jail today. He was buncoes out of $41,476 January 23, 1920, in an asserted fake stock deal.

T. J. Kerr, a retired lumberman of Paradise, Pa., who was fleeced out of $31,000, was asked to visit the ten in jail.

Sam Schulz of Anaheim, formerly of Gregory, S. D., was buncoed out of $32,000 in a fake stock deal. He was requested to see whether he could identify any of the ten.

Simon Weiss, former farmer of Fargo, N. D., who was saved from the loss of $10,000 by the intervention of district attorney's investigators, will call at the jail today. Fred Mayne is now serving a term in San Quentin for attempting grand larceny from Weiss.

VALUABLE GIFT FOR NEBRASKA MUSEUM

Mrs. Julia Greene Bell Presents China Dating Back to 1790 and Other Articles Now Almost Unobtainable.

The Nebraska state museum has just received an important addition to its collection of wares and pottery. The china dates back to 1790 and and of the pieces are almost unobtainable. The new collection was donated by Mrs. Julia Greene Bell of Lincoln. It consists of a series of old fashioned china plates, cups, saucers, bowls, vases, candlesticks, pitchers, carved alabaster box, idols, and the like.

Prof. E. H. Barbour states that industrial collections are among the most important that can be prepared for museums, and among these industrial china and pottery probably hold first place in popular interest. The Nebraska museum has a considerable nucleus thru gifts from Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Bryan of old pieces of pottery and old china around which to build future collections. The sets previously secured will be greatly augmented thru the addition of the present set.

Some of the vases in Mrs. Bell's collection are of the queer old New England colors very much sought after at the present time thruout the eastern United States. The dinner service is decorated with raised figures delicately tinted lavender. The cups are large, likewise the saucers. In addition there is what was called at that time cup-plates. The cup plates resemble old-fashioned butter dishes. The coffee or tea was poured from the cup into the saucer, then the cup was placed on the cup-plate, while the beverage was drunk from the saucer, a use of the saucer not in vogue at the present time.

The new collection will be accessioned, numbered, and installed by Mrs. Redford and Miss Barbour and will be installed in the first case at the head of the stairs on the second floor and will be ready next Sunday. The museum will be kept open Sunday afternoons from 1 to 6 during the balance of the legislative session, to give legislators, their wives, families and friends opportunity to visit the collections. Mr. and Mrs. Allison, students and assistants in the department of geology and geography will have charge of the first and second floors, and Mr. and Mrs. F. K. Foster, also assistants in the department, will have charge of the third and fourth floors.

BANKER FACES CHARGES

Henry Brock Charged With Homicide in Connection With Running Down Three Persons.

PHILADELPHIA, March 3.—Henry G. Brock, wealthy clubman and banker, who is charged with homicide in connection with the running down and killing of three persons by an automobile yesterday, will be brought to trial promptly, District Attorney Rotan announced today.

Brock flatly denies he was the driver of the death car.

RUM RUNNERS ARE ACTIVE

Eleven Vessels Seen Off New Jersey Coast, Following Breaking Up of Ice.

NEW YORK, March 3.—With the breaking up of the ice along the New Jersey coast, rum runners were once more reported active and eleven vessels were seen off Sandyhook today.

Ships of a new international liquor smuggling corporation recently understood to have entered the hum running business on a large scale, were reported due at the three mile limit this week end.

Federal officials admitted they looked for increased activity on the part of the booze vessels. These vessels have been provisioned from small boats, sent out by friends of the smugglers or by shop keepers from whom goods are ordered. Washington authorities have been asked for a ruling as to whether the small craft carrying provision of rum runners may not be stopped.

HOSPITALIZATION ATTACKED

Harreld Declares It Is Blot on Record of the Administration.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Hospitalization of veterans of the world war "is a blot on the record of the administration," Senator Harreld of Oklahoma declared today in the senate in an attack on the veterans' bureau.

Senator Ashurst of Arizona also joined in the attack.

Preparations now are being made to appoint a special group of investigators to determine what phases of the charges against the veterans bureau shall first be examined by the senate committee to make the investigation by congress.

COUNTY JUDGES SET A STRANGE EXAMPLE

Represented That Some of Them Are Ashamed to Take Money They Have Received and Glad to Be Reduced.

Nebraska county judges, some of themat least, are taking what legislators assume to be an unheard of position. They want their salaries lowered. When this news was shot at the members by Representative Ward, some of them rubbed their eyes and sat straight up that they might hear some more of it. They were told that in several instances, judges in counties of under 2,000 population, are ashamed to take the money the state has forced upon them.

The new schedules proposed by Messrs McCain and Ward and amended by standing committee, lowers the wage to judges of these smaller counties from $800 to $400 a year. And if the bill passes, which appears likely, those officials who have complained of the bigness of the pay, are likely to remain on the job. The new scale lowers sheriffs of counties of from 2,000 to 4,000 population to $800. In counties of from 4,000 to 6,000 population, the pay is lowered to $1,000. In counties of from 6,000 to 16,000, the bill proposes the following scale:

Where fees from $1000 to $1500.....1400
Where fees from $1500 to $2000.....1600
Where fees from $2000 to 3000.....1800
Where fees over $3000 annually.....1900

The bill does not provide changes in counties of more than 16,000. Under the present law, the following salaries are paid to county judges:

Counties under 3,000.....$ 800 00
From 3,000 to 6,000..... 1,500 00
From 6,000 to 16,000..... 1,900.00

GIVE MRS. HARDING SILK.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Mrs. Harding was presented with the material for what undoubtedly will be the most elaborate state dress in modern times. It contains the finest example of the American silk makers art and is embroidered with gold bullion flowers that are a work of art in themselves. The gift was brought to the white house by James Hutchinson, South Manchester, Conn., who has been an artisan in the silk trade of this country for fifty years.

FRUSTRATE TURK ACTION

Senate Defeats Measure to Break Off Relations With Turkey Until It Leaves Armenia.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—An effort to have the United States break off diplomatic relations with Turkey until her forces are withdrawn from Armenia, was frustrated in the senate today.

Senator King, Utah, democrat, introduced a resolution expressing the sense of the senate that diplomatic relations should be discontinued until Turkey would permit peace settlements. Objection was made by Senator Lodge, chairman of the foreign relations committee and the resolution went over under the rule, thus killing it for this session of congress.

King charged in his resolution that occupation by the Turks and the general Turkish attitude against Armenia was obstructing peace settlements.

He declared that inasmuch as the United States and Great Britain had recognized Armenia as an independent state, this move should be taken to safeguard peace in that country.

SHOPCRAFTS RESOLUTIONS.

The Lincoln federated shopcrafts have passed the following resolutions:

"Whereas it is in the course of human events that all born to this world are born to die and pass to the great unknown beyond this life, and

Whereas it has been the will of the almighty to remove from this life the beloved mother of our esteemed brother V. H. Gallagher, therefor be it

COMMUNITY CHEST PLANS EARLY DRIVE

Concerted Campaign for Funds in Early Spring—Permanent Organization Adds Three Members.

The Lincoln Community Chest became a permanent organization Friday evening, elected officers and an executive committee, and discussed plans for a drive to raise funds for the organizations that hitherto have made separate campaigns for funds. The thirty-five members present went on record in favor of staging the joint drive before the first of May. Some of the member organizations are at or near the end of their fiscal years and so it was deemed advisable to lose no time. Each organization will submit its 1923 budget, an account of its 1922 expenditures, its list of 1922 contributors, new projects calling for changes in the budget, and such other information as the executive committee will require. The committee will pass on the budgets, make up one grand budget, and outline the campaign to raise it. Then there will be no more drives until next year, at least by member organizations.

In effecting a permanent organization, which was done at a meeting at the Grand hotel at 6:30, the members amended the articles of incorporation to provide for two vice presidents, and added the City Mission, Society for the Friendless, Tuberculosis association, Business Women's league and Axis club to the member agencies. The report of the nominating committee was adopted unanimously. The president and secretary are ex-officio members of the executive committee, and the first five names in the latter list represent the council of social agencies. The officers and committeemen are:

Officers.

W. A. Selleck, president.
Dr. E. F. Bailey, vice president.
J. J. Ledwith, vice president.
O. J. Fee, secretary.
C. C. Carlsen, treasurer.

Executive Committee.

N. Z. Snell.
W. A. Luke.
Mrs. B. F. Williams.
W. S. Yates.
Mrs. T. F. A. Williams.
Ralph Wilson.
August Eiche.
George Dayton.
J. E. Miller.
Don Love.
Mrs. W. W. Whitfield.
Labor delegate (to be named).
Elmer E. Henkle.
Verne Hedge.
W. E. Hardy.

The twenty member organizations are: Social Welfare society, two members. Red Cross, two members. Y. M. C. A., two members. Y. W. C. A., two members. Humane society, two members. Boy Scouts, two members. Campfire Girls, two members. Chamber of commerce, ten members. City of Lincoln, five members. Woman's club, three members. Central Labor Union, three members. Rotary, Kiwanis, Lions, Pathfinders, two each. City Mission, one member. Society for the Friedless, one members. Tuberculosis association, one member. Axis club, one member. Business Women's league, one member.

PEOPLE YOU KNOW.

Friends of Mrs. Julius Parker Sedgwick of Minneapolis, Minn., have received word of the death of her husband, Dr. Julius Parker Sedgwick in that city Sunday. Mrs. Sedgwick was formerly Miss Emily Weeks of Lincoln, daughter of I. J. P. Weeks. Dr. Sedgwick who was a graduate of the University of Nebraska was nationally known as a foremost expert on children's diseases and his research work in child feeding was recognized by medical authorities everywhere as among the most important strides made in recent years in reducing child mortality. He was forty-seven years of age. Dr. Sedgwick received degrees from the University of Nebraska, Rush Medical college and studied at the University of Berlin. He had been in Minneapolis since 1905, and was head of the University of Minnesota department of pediatrics. The account of his death in the Minneapolis Journal contains the statement, "There was not a child born in Minneapolis but that the mother received instructions from Dr. Sedgwick's bureau. Nurses from the bureau called on every mother, or offered to do so. The statistics of this research showed the remarkable effect his researches had in reducing child mortality." Dr. Sedgwick leaves his wife and seven children.

Miss Persis Heaton, of Indianola, Ia., national president of the Mu Phi Epsilon musical sorority, will arrive by an early train Saturday morning to be the guest of the local chapter over Saturday and Sunday. She will be entertained at the home of Madame Gilderoy Scott. Saturday from 4 to 6 p. m. the chapter will entertain at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Newens, 1840 E. at a tea to which all members of the local musical sororities, Delta Omicron and Sigma Alpha Iota are invited. Invitations have also been extended to one member from each of the non-musical sororities represented at the University of Nebraska. Sunday afternoon an informal musicale will be given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Rosborough for Miss Heaton.

About forty couples were entertained at the annual formal dinner-dance of the Scabbard and Blade, honorary military fraternity of the state university at the Lincoln hotel Friday night. The dinner was attended by both active and honorary members. The room was decorated in military fashion, the national and university regiment flags adorned the walls and all the hangings were in the patriotic colors. Among the guests were: Major B. L. Knight and Miss May Pershing, Captain Robert Nix and Mrs. D. M. Butler, Prof. and Mrs. J. B. Burt, Major and Mrs. Sidney Erickson, Captain and Mrs. M. H. Forbes, Lieutenant and Mrs. Max Oliver, Harold Hartley and Verne Lewellen.

The men's club of the All Souls' Unitarian church was entertained by a demonstration by the boy scout troop of the church at their meeting Friday night. They then listened to W. J. Kent, scout executive, who talked on "Scouting." The meeting was attended by about twenty and was presided over by Prof. R. H. Wolcott.

An informal recital will be given Saturday evening in the university school of music corridors by Sigma Alpha Iota, when two sorority members who are to appear in graduation recitals this spring, Miriam Righter and Louise Stonehocker, will be heard in part of their programs.

An interesting "Nebraska Day" program given in the McKinley auditorium, Thursday by the 8A grade, of which Miss Mildred Anderson is teacher. The program was as follows:

Violin solo—Herman Koch.
Song—Nebraska.
Exercise—Nebraska.
Dance of the Butterfly—Virginia Richardson, Beatrice Northrup.
A Nebraska Magician—Fred Geis.

State Land Commissioner Dan Swanson returned Friday from Wahoo. He found no evidence of a decrease in land values in eastern Nebraska. He was told that farmers are getting all the money they desire from banks at 5 per cent. One hundred and sixty acres of land near Mead sold recently for $255 an acre and a tract near Greenwood sold for $265 an acre.

Mrs. A. T. Rector, returned Monday to her home in Chicago after spending several weeks with her sister, Mrs. C. A. Gregg.

Mrs. Presson, wife of Rev. J. H. Presson, member of Governor Bryan's office force, died Friday afternoon at the family home in Omaha. She had been in poor health for several years. She was a pioneer citizen of Nebraska and with her husband made her home at Tecumseh, Dacid City, Stromsburg and at other cities in the state. Short funeral services will be held Saturday at 10 o'clock at the residence in Omaha. The burial will take place Sunday at Stromsburg.

Amusements.

"Up in the Clouds" at the Orpheum.

The patrons of the Orpheum theater saw the opening on Friday night of the Joseph M. Gaites production of "Up in the Clouds." This new American musical play has been out for a year now and is well established as a success. Why this is so is no mystery to those who witnessed the opening performance. It is a play with an interesting and strictly modern plot, dealing with the movie business. It is a musical comedy. It is a spectacle with cloud effects and a number of wonderful scenes. It offers bursts of vaudeville and quite a little burlesque. It is a carnival of the dance, with swiftly flying figures keeping time to crashing music. It is winter garden and tired business man stuff in the main, but now and then it presents scenes of refinement and beauty as when the colonial young ladies glide around the stage in voluminous dresses and sit down to drink tea and help Betsy Ross make the American flag. That is a reminder that the movie scenario promoted in the flag is based on a patriotic theme, and that gives the whole affair a wholesome American background. You don't often find that sort of thing in a piece given over to flappers and vamps and dancers and comedians, but it is the real background of "Up in the Clouds." Perhaps that helps the flash and flesh and froth and fun to make the piece such a magnet in every city it visits.

The company must be big and competent to put such a heavy show across with such a bang. People like Charles Meakins and Thomas Magrane and Jack Shehan and the grotesque Gertrude O'Conner and several of their associates have been seen here again and again in standard productions and in vaudeville. They have handsome young men and beauteous young ladies to make up the motion picture company, and enough eccentric dancers and comedians to start a home for the aged. The audience was full of laughter and approval.

SAVINGS IN AUTO NUMBERS

Plates Cost 5 Cents Now, Whereas Formerly The State Paid 14 Cents.

In view of the proposition of the governor to abolish the bureau of purchasing and supplies and have an executive state officer perform the duties, these figures are of interest:

Before the sate adopted the present system of purchasing automobile numbers, the work was done by a state department the board of irrigation, composed of state officers. The price paid for each plate was 14 cents, and this meant delivery at the statehouse, from which they had to be sent out.

Under the present plan of purchase the state pays 5 cents for these numbers, and they are sent direct from the manufactory to the county treasurer, who givesthem out. Iowa formerly paid 8 cents, and still pays 8 cents. Kansas formerly paid 11 cents, and now pays 5. North Dakota still pays 7 cents, South Dakota has reduced the cost from 7 cents to 6, while Colorado has cut them from 8 cents to 7.

The saving is $27.000 a year, or enough to pay the operation expenses of the bureau for five years.

OFFICERS CAPTURE HOOCH

Make Raid at 1226 North Ninth Street and Get Several Barrels of Mash and Still.

Over one hundred gallons of mash a large copper still in operation, two gallons of alleged hooch, and three one-half pint bottles of liquor were seized by Captain of Detectives Walter Anderson and Detective N. F. Schneible in a raid at 5 p. m. Friday upon the home of Peter Schwindt, 1226 North Ninth street.

The detectives were driving past the place and smelled hooch. Upon going into the house the still and mash were discovered on the second floor. The mash was in several large barrels. The distillery outfit, the mash and liquor was taken to the police station in the patrol wagon by Officer Leon Towle where it will be held for evidence. Mr. Schwindt was not at the house when the detectives made their visit. His wife and an infant child were there. According to Captain Anderson, a complaint will be filed against Mr. Schwindt.

EVIDENCE ALL IN IN DAMAGE CASE

Mrs. Minnie Wolfe Asks Thirty Thousand From J. E. Dudley, Alleging His Auto Struck and Killed Her Husband.

All the evidence in the $30,000 damage suit of Mrs. Minnie C. Wolfe against J. E. Dudley had been taken Friday afternoon, and the jury, in District Judge Shepard's court, was allowed to go home until Monday, when the arguments will be made and the jurors instructed.

Mrs. Wolfe sued for damages for the death last May of her husband, Christopher C. Wolfe, fatally injured in an auto accident ten miles northeast of Beatrice. Mr. Wolfe had engine trouble, and was preparing to fix his engine when, it is alleged, the defendant passed the auto, of the deceased on the wrong side, struck him, and gave him injuries from which he died two days later in Beatrice.

Mr. Dudley testified that he had been driving a group of baseball players from Fairbury, and that he did not see Mr. Wolfe's auto until very close; that another auto, coming from the opposite direction, kept him from passing the Wolfe car on the proper side. He thought he was taking the ditch with his own car, he said, and did not see Mr. Wolfe until he had nearly struck him.

"The Isle of Tasboni."

A second performance of "The Isle of Tasboni" by business men of University Place was produced Friday evening at Wesleyan auditorium before a large audience. The musical comedy was staged about a month ago by the same cast.

The "noble" American hoboes, Princess Caoula, Prince Jocasse and the queen Anthalapora were well supported by a southern sea beauty chorus and their cannibal partners. Miss Ruth Callemeyn, as the princess, was received well both on account of her acting and her singing. The three wise men, Knowghi, Soughi and Ali Ben, played by Doctors Guy Spencer, G. L. Butler and Jesse Taylor, aptly interpreted their roles.

The scene is laid in Tasboni, an isle of the southern seas. The prince was to have been taken from the princess and made to take the throne and marry the widowed queen. The three wise men who had arranged this plan, however, were flustrated by two American "noblemen" found cast upon the shore. The most dextrious of the two was able to escape being roasted alive to save his partner from the same fate and to gain the queen and the throne for himself. The prince was thus released from a prospect of unhappy matrimony, the princess was as happy as her betrothed, and Bingo, the hobo king, learned to be perfectly contented on the isle with his southern queen.

The business men, thru one of the cannibal choiristers, presented Mr. and Mrs. Roy E. Tomlinson, director and pianist, with a large table lamp at an ensemble scene between acts. The orchestra was directed by George W. Ainlay. The comedy was written by E. L. Fulton, formerly of Pawnee City.

MERE MENTION.

Ashley L. Gleason has filed suit in district court against H. G. Schroeder, asking judgment for $5.000, alleging that amount due on an unpaid promissory note.

Leo Barker, forty-two years old, was arrested Friday afternoon on a charge of drunkenness by Officer Leon Towle. Mr. Barker is being held at the city jail awaiting his arraingment before Police Judge Chappell at 9 a. m. Saturday.

Earl Blue, 127 North Thirteenth, was arrested by Officer Nichols Friday afternoon on a charge of leaving an auto parked longer than two hours within the restricted area. He was notified to appear in police court Saturday morning.

A decree of divorce in favor of William F. Johnston has been entered by District Judge Morning against Mrs. Rhoda Johnston. They were married in Nebraska City. The husband charged that his wife abandoned him without cause. They have no children.

One copy of the national chamber of commerce referendum No. 41 has been received by the Lincoln chamber. Additional copies have been requested that they may be placed in the hands of the jobbers and manufacturers subdivision, retail trade promotion subdivision and insurance subdivision for special study and report. Ther referendum deals with trade associations and embodies eight propositions.

Mrs. Etta Z. Buffum filed suit Friday afternoon in district court for a divorce from Charles R. Buffum. She charges failure to support, and that he has been guilty of cruelty in other ways. Mr. and Mrs. Buffum were married November 16, 1898, in Pawnee City. They are the parents of Corrine Buffum, who married and later divorced Raymond Burleigh, youngest soldier of the world war.

against the Pioneer Construction com-

The case of James A. Crouse pany, in which the plaintiff asked for $2,730, alleged due in addition to $2,370 he had already received, as reasonable compensation for bridge building he had performed, was submitted to the jury Friday afternoon, but no verdict had been reached when court adjourned Friday evening. Mr. Crouse alleged he worked more than ninety weeks at $30 a week, and that a bonus had been promised him to take the job at that figure. He claimed the bonus had not been paid. The company denies promising a bonus.

Fern Hull, Virginia Patterson and Ramona Knerr, the three fourteen-year-old girls who disappeared from Lincoln Wednesday night, appeared before Judge Morning of the juvenile court Friday afternoon, and were given a lecturing by the judge for their escapade. Charles Bell, young man who is said to have accompanied them on their trip to Omaha, faces a possible charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor child, and Milton Butts, a minor, who also went with them to Omaha, faces a trip back to Kearney, where he is said to have been before, according to Deputy County Attorney Max Towle and Judge Morning. The boys are not charged with any immorality, except, according to juvenile workers, they contributed to the runaway of the girls and caused the parents a night of anxietr, and the police of Omaha and Lincoln some watchful work.

The new Elliott parent-teachers' association held its first public meeting in the new Elliott building Friday night. Three hundred were present. The old Elliott school orchestra played a number of selections and Judge Morning gave a talk on "Your Job and My Job." He urged the parents to be sure at all times that they knew where their boys and girls were. If the parents remained on their job it would lessen his work and if they neglected their duty it would increase his work. He urged the parents and teachers to prepare the boys and girls to occupy positions of trust in the community and to be law abiding citizens.

SHERIFF SEARCHING FOR MISSING MAN

Search for Charles W. Redman of Clay Center, who disappeared from his home on February 23, is being made by Sheriff J. J. Harr of Clay county. Redman left his wife and four children and was supposed to have gone to Omaha to purchase some supplies for his moving picture machine. No trace of him could be found in Omaha.

The missing man was last seen in Friend on the day he left home. He is in the moving picture business at Clay Center and it is stated that the business had not been going well. He left home in a Club roadster Overland which bore the number 30-599 Neb. He is described as 5 feet 7 1-2 inches tall, has medium brown hair, is smooth shaven and has gray eyes. There is a scar on his left wrist. When he left home he wore a brown suit, brown overcoat, brown cap, tan shirt and brown shoes. He is thirty-two years old.

WHEAT NEEDS RAIN BADLY

Lancaster County Grain Is Suffering From Drouth—Some Fields May Be Plowed Up.

Lancaster county's wheat needs rain, according to County Agent Benjamin Montgomery. The extremely dry weather of the past few days has developed cracks two feet deep in the ground in some fields, and the dry subsoil bids fair to cause some of the wheat to be plowed up for corn, he said. Some wells in Bennet are going dry, Mr. Montgomery has been informed. Mr. Montgomery did not like to be spreading gloom, but added his opinion that if the mild weather keeps up, fruit buds may be endangered by later cold snaps. While the dry weather may be hard on wheat it is fine for early litters of pigs, as farmers usually have trouble at this time of year with their small pigs dying of cold.

SIX STORMY DAYS AT SEA END WITH BOAT, POULTRY AND PIGS ON BOARD SAFE

NEW YORK.—Their barge a solidly coated "igloo" of snow and ice, Capt. Hezzie Barrack and wife, Grace, brought their craft safely into New York harbor after six perilous days at sea. Chickens and pigs they kept on board were very much alive and able to eat three "squares" a day when the ship made port. Captain Barrack and Mrs. Barrack stood trick and trick at the wheel, while fierce storms that swept the Atlantic seaboard made their ocean-going home look like a summer hotel at the North Pole.

MAY PAY ON A NEW BASIS

CAPITOL COMMISSION TALKS OF SHIFTING PLANS.

Considers Paying Architect 6 Per Cen of Building Cost Instead of Following Out Present Method.

Examination of the records of the state capitol commission show that Bertram G. Goodhue of New York, architect for the commission, up to the present time, has been paid $155,919. This covers not only the $25,000 a year salary of Mr. Goodhue but the expenses of travel, superintendence, the making of drawings and so forth.

Under the contract with Mr. Goodhue, he is to draw $25,000 a year as salary for a period of five years The cost of making the drawings and the expenses of the architect are to be paid by the state in addition.

In order to protect the state, a clause in the contract permits the commission to shift over to a 6 per cent basis for all of the costs involved in Mr. Goodhue's office.

The members of the commission have already discussed with Mr. Goodhue the probability that they would ask for a change in the contract under which the state would pay a total of $300,000 for the work connected with the expenditure of the $5,000,000 appropriated for the capitol.

W. E. Hardy said Friday night that practically all of the extra work of the architect, Mr. Goodhue, is done. The commission has in its hands complete plans for the erection of the building and the only thing that remains to be done is some of the artistic finishing. The great bulk of the architectural expense has already been incurred.

In case the commission should at any time believe that the cost of the work of the architect was excessive, the state is protected by a clause in the contract that provides that they may shift over to the six per cent basis, which is the lowest figure at which any reputable architect could be procured. However, the amount already paid to the architect is not in excess of six per cent of the total cost to date and the great bulk of the architect's expense has been met.

George E. Johnson, secretary of the commission and state engineer, said Friday night when asked about the records of the commission and the contract under which Mr. Goodhue is working that the commission had the privilege of changing to the 6 per cent contract any time within five years.

L. F. Mayer in charge of Mr. Goodhue's office at New York, it is understood, had said that if the commission did change to the 6 per cent contract, the architect would insist that the commission pay for engineer's fees outside the 6 per cent. If they should do this, Mr. Johnson said, when asked what the effect would be, it would amount to about $400,000. It is understood that the commission may differ from the view of Mr. Mayer and that this matter and many other details will be taken under thoro consideration before it is decided to make the change.

The 6 per cent contract applies to the architectural work. There is some special work on the furniture which is to be paid for at a rate of 10 per cent and the sculpture is to be paid for extra, Mr. Johnson said.

The 6 per cent rate on the total cost of the capitol of $5,000,000 would amount to $300,000. At the rate the commission has paid, it is probable that the cost would run over the 6 per cent rate, the records show, Mr. Johnson stated. With the sculpture cost and all the contract might run $350,000 to $375,000.

There is an item of overhead listed in the records and the expense paid to Mr. Goodhue under this entry is $35,000. Mr. Goodhue's office claims that the overhead runs about 100 per cent of the salary. The amount under this head has been certified to the commission by a certified accountant in New York city which examines the accounts of the New York office. So far the capitol commission, Mr. Johnson stated, has taken the New York check but expects to check up this matter for itself.

The amount paid to the architect thus far on work completed on the capitol is more than 6 per cent of the work actually completed, possibly, Mr. Johnson said, but the total of contracts let amounts to about $2,500,000. The plans of Mr. Goodhue for the building are completed with the exception of some details. It is because it appears that the cost may be larger than 6 per cent that the commission has taken under consideration the advisability of changing to the 6 per cent plan. As far as the payment of 6 per cent is concerned, Mr. Johnson said, that it was the usual per cent paid for architects on buildings of the class of the capitol.

Another item of expense in the records that Mr. Johnson's attention was called to is an entry which shows that an employe of Mr. Goodhue's has drawn $4,526 up to the end of February. This is paid to the "clerk of the works'" Mr. Johnson said and the amount is $100 a week. It is the usual custom to have some one do this work and the salary being paid here is not excessive.

WALT MASON

Saturday Eve.

Another week is ended, and I, with feelings punk, recall the paths I've wended, the stairways I've ascended, to gain another plunk. I have all kinds of shillings, and still, with frantic speed, I'm keeping up my drillings, I look for further killings, to gain more chickenfeed. If I should die tomorrow and quit this course of toil, my aunts, immersed in sorrow, won't have to beg or borrow, to make the kettle boil. I have sufficient plunder, I have an ample store; and so I sit and wonder just why in purple thunder I claw around for more. I'm growing old and wheezy, white hair is on my crown; I ought to take things easy, and quit my strivings cheesey, and watch the sun go down. Thus, when the week is dying, I gossip with my soul, and in the dusk I'm sighing, "I'm old, and I'll quit trying to swell my ample roll." But Monday morning finds me hot-footing thru the grad; no wise resolve now binds me, the thought of resting grinds me, I chase another scad. For wealth I am not lusting when I the plunks pursue; but sloth is too disgusting, and one will die of rusting when he remarks, "I'm thru!"

HAVE COLOR IN CHEEKS

Be Better Looking — Take Olive Tablets

If your skin is yellow—complexion pallid—tongue coated—appetite poor—you have a bad taste in your mouth—a lazy, no-good feeling—you should take Olive Tablets.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—a substitute for calomel—were prepared by Dr. Edwards after 17 years of study

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color.

To have a clear, pink skin, bright eyes, no pimples, a feeling of buoyancy like childhood days you must get at the cause.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act on the liver and bowels like calomel—yet have no dangerous after effects.

They start the bile and overcome constipation. Take one or two nightly and note the pleasing results. Millions of boxes are sold annually at 15c and 30c.

Concerning Careers.

Men, as a rule, have a good deal to say about women and careers. The man who urges a girl on with her career wants to keep her as his bachelor girl friend, but the man who says woman's place is in the home means matrimony.

When Dr. Kent heard that Muriel had sold two domestic articles to a woman's magazine he turned pale and shook his head in disapproval. "They won't take any more," he volunteered. "I suppose you just happened to strike them in the right vein. All those papers have staff writers and the ordinary contributor doesn't stand a ghost of a show."

"Perhaps, before long I shall be a member of the staff," said Muriel with a saucy twinkle in her eyes.

"Bunk," announced the doctor. "Anyway, who wants to be a writer of woman's stuff? Wouldn't it be much nicer to ride to town every morning in your machine and pick out fresh vegetables and fruits for your own home than to write about how to do it for some other woman to read? Bunk, Muriel. Let's consider that color scheme we decided upon for the living room, gray and old rose, wasn't it?"

"Just the same, I'm going over to see the editor of that paper and see if I can't get on the staff," continued Muriel, ignoring the reference to their future living room. "You wouldn't object to marrying me if I should become a famous writer, would you?"

"Never heard of any one becoming famous writing about kitchens and how to decorate the home with soap boxes and cretonne," sneered the doctor.

"Oh, but I wouldn't stop there," eagerly replied Muriel. "Of course when I was really broken into the writing game I'd land a best seller, one of those Mary Rhinehart Roberts novels. Meanwhile, I'd marry and rear a wonderful family like hers. I think marriage and careers go together, one stimulates the other."

"You'd marry that absurd young Landis, then, I suppose," slipped from Dr. Kent's tongue before he realized what he had said.

Muriel darted a quick glance at him and flushed.

"By the time I have acquired fame Landis will probably be married to one of his numerous girl friends whom he keeps on his calling list."

"Are you jealous of them?"

"Not a bit of it. I should go abroad then and"—

"So you admit that you wouldn't become Mrs. George Kent, then, if you should acquire fame?" summed up the doctor with the conviction of a man who has been looking for something and at last put his hand upon the flaw.

"I have surmised many things," declared Dr. Kent. "Among others that you wish to attain financial independence so that you can hang around and wait for Landis. If you go out and hunt for a staff position our engagement will have to come to an end."

"Is this a threat?"

"Merely my wish, which, as your fiance, I think I have the right to demand."

"I don't agree with you at all," replied Muriel. "I am going down to see the editor tomorrow morning. If you do not call by eight-thirty in the evening I think I shall phone Landis. The matter rests with you."

Dr. Kent was entirely too indignant to reply. He did not trust himself but calmly picked up his fedora, his coat and gloves and walked out of the room.

NEWS FROM NEBRASKA

CORLISS BROTHERS ARE FOUND GUILTY

Leroy and Burt Corliss, Hubert P. Ryner and E. G. Bandy to Appeal From Conviction for Using Mails to Defraud.

OMAHA, March 3.—Leroy Corliss, president; Burt B. Corliss, vice president, and Hubert P. Ryner, treasurer of the defunct $2,000,000 Waterloo Creamery company of Council Bluffs, and E. G. Bandy, head of the Commerce Loan and Finance company, were found guilty in federal court here last night of using the mails to defraud thru sale of Waterloo Creamery stock.

Sentence was deferred by Judge Kennedy until April 21. On that date he will also hear motions for new trials.

The two Corliss brothers and Ryner were found guilty on nine counts and Bandy on one. The jury was out six hours. The trial consumed three weeks and cost the government thousands of dollars.

William H. Wilbur and William F. Stoetsell, Omaha, and Edward M. Schaefer, Storm Lake, Ia., salesmen, were acquitted.

Originally nineteen men and one woman were to have been tried in the Waterloo case. Eight of the defendants could not be found, and five others were dismissed during progress of the trial because of insufficient evidence.

Eight of the counts against the Corliss brothers charged use of the mails to defraud and each carries a maximum sentence of five years' imprisonment and a $10,000 fine. The ninth count was conspiracy, which is punishable by two years and a $5,000 fine. Bandy was found guilty of the latter count.

Leroy Corliss packed his briar pipe, lit it with steady fingers, rose and grinned bravely at his brother, Burt, after the clerk of the court had read the verdicts. Ryner, who cried while on the witness stand two days ago, showed no more emotion than did the two brothers and Bandy, all of whom, in spite of avowed expectation of acquittal, did not move a muscle when found guilty.

"Guilty on the first count, guilty on the second count, guilty—" droned the clerk's voice, and the lad's hand tightened its affectionate grip. Then he broke down and cried.

WILL CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY

Massacre Canyon Memorial Plans at Meeting.

M'COOK, Neb., March 3.—A meeting of the board of directors of the Massacre Canyon Memorial association was held in McCook. President A. L. Taylor of Trenton; Secretary H. B. McKibben of Culbertson; Treasurer C. H. Boyle of McCook; Directors J. W. Smith of Stratton; G. G. Eisenhart of Culbertson; W. D. Otis of Trenton; F. M. Kimmell of McCook, were present. Besides arranging for the opening of a drive for the sale of membership certificates in the association at once, plans were tentatively made for the celebration near Trenton August 3, 4, 5, 1923, of the fiftieth anniversary of the massacre of the Pawnees by Sioux Indians. It is expected to have the base of the memorial in by that date, and a delegation of Pawnee Indians present as the big attraction for the event.

BRIEF STATE NEWS.

York—The Commercial club and the city council are working together to provide means to build a community building.

York—County Engineer Voyles has prepared a plan for patrolmen on the county roads upon which there are about 226 miles within the county. His plan is to have four men take care of 105 miles of these roads. The proposed salary for the patrolmen is $8 per month. The estimated cost for the first year is estimated to be $4,000, which included the first cost of equipment. The cost after the first year will be less. There is at present $16,000 in the fund for improving the county highways, which is the portion allotted for that purpose from the automobile license fund.

Geneva.—A barn and Dodge car belonging to Frank Battle were burned here this afternoon. The origin of the fire is unknown. On account of the high wind, the firemen had difficulty in keeping flames from adjacent buildings.

YORK POLICE CHIEF RESIGNS

Ordinance Passed to Raise Council Salaries.

YORK, Neb., March 3.—At a regular meeting of the city council the clerk was instructed to advertise the bonds for paving district No. 21. The number of blocks will be thirty-three. Chief of Police Neil Olson tendered his resignation, which was accepted. An ordinance was passed to raise the mayor's salary from $100 to $500, and council members from $50 to $100. The state has agreed to build a new bridge on South Lincoln avenue, which will be a twenty-ton, seventy-nine clear span, twenty-four feet wide with a walk on each side with four concrete light posts. The work will be under the direction of the state engineer.

RUN OF STOCK IS FORECASTED

Many Empty Cars Sent West to Be Loaded.

WYMORE, Neb., March 3.—Three trains with eighty-five empty stock cars each, passed thru here Thursday en route from Kansas City to points in western Nebraska and Kansas to be loaded with market stock. This is an indication of a heavy run to the markets again the coming Sunday. It was learned about fifty cars had preceded these trains west the same part of the week, and that two more eighty-five car trains were on the way from the Missouri river to each western stations the last of the week. It is understood that ranchers have been unable to ship their stock recently for lack of cars, but it is estimated that Sunday will be one of the heaviest runs thru here. Four and five car loads of eggs are now passing thru here daily for Chicago and New York, indicating that the moderate weather is having a beneficial effect on the farmer's flocks.

MR. WILDMAN IS IMPROVING

Man Whose Skull Was Fractured Thursday May Lose Sight of Left Eye.

YORK, Neb., March 3.—David Wildman, who, it is alleged, was struck by Charles Kranda a renter on the Wildman place, Thursday, is improving. According to reports Mr. Kranda claimed Wildman owed him for the pasturage of two horses belonging to Wildman, which he refused to pay. Wildman started for the pasture to get the horse and it is alleged Kranda struck him fracturing his skull.

The ambulance was called and brought Wildman to a hospital in this city where he did not gain consciousness until about midnight. Physicians say the left eye is injured and he may lose the sight. Complaint was filed this morning and Sheriff Peterson started out to get Kranda and drove one hundred and ten miles but failed to find him.

POSSE SEARCHES FOR BANDIT

Score of Officers Make Unsuccessful Hunt Friday.

GRAND ISLAND, Neb., March 2.—Over a score of officers from this city and Central City searched the region of the Platte valley near Chapman for James Tyre, alleged auto thief Friday. It was reported that Tyre was seen in an automobile by the Lincoln highway patrol early in the day but this report is denied by the police who state that this was a brother of the much wanted man.

Western Beekeepers Form Society.

SCOTTSBLUFF, Neb., March 3.—The beekeepers of the valley formed the North Platte Valley Honey Producers association at a meeting held in the farm bureau office here, last week. Mr. H. H. Spencer of Scottsbluff was elected president and F. M. Atkinson of Mitchell, secretreasurer-treasurer.

While the North Platte valley is an ideal territory, this is the first movement towards the organization of the beemen. According to Phil Sheldon, county agricultural agent, their objects are to see that their members put up a clean, standard package of honey; to eliminate four brood and other bee diseases in the valley; to pool their supply orders and obtain them at lower prices thru affiliation with the Nebraska Honey Producer's association; to obtain and disseminate among their members educational information and to hold inspection tours at which the better versed beemen in the valley show correct methods of handling bees.

Farm Bureau Holds Election.

SCOTTSBLUFF, Neb., March 3.—At a meeting held in Scotts Bluff county last week, Mr. Guy Spurrier was elected farm bureau director, Tom Polk, president, and Edwin Strachan, secretary, of the Mitchell valley farm bureau federation local. Albert Dakan, educational secretary of the Colorado beet grower's association was present, and told of the condition of the Colorado association. A very interesting and successful time was had last week in weighing and measuring the children in county district No. 5, according to Phil Sheldon, county agent. The women of the district were assisted by Miss Boyes of the farm bureau federation office. Children from 1 to 7 per cent underweight were given blue cards. Those from seven to 20 per cent were given red cards and those who were average or above weight received white cards. Sixteen white cards, fourteen blue and twenty-one red were given out.

Water Rights May Lapse.

LEXINGTON, Neb., March 3.—The farmers in the west end of Dawson county are making rapid strides in perfecting an organization to maintain their priority water rights which date back to the early nineties, says county agent A. R. Hecht. The reason for the new interest is that their rights will be canceled and given to other people unless the old ditches are operated again.

Petitions have been circulated and a majority of the land under the ditches has been signed. This amounts to about 77,000 acres in Dawson county, 42,000 being in German, Blaine and Gillan precincts and the balance in Antelope and Fairview.

CHILD'S SKULL IS FRACTURED

Mrs. C. J. Reilly Is Also Severely Injured in Auto Accident at Beatrice.

BEATRICE, Neb., March 3.—Mrs. C. J. Reilly, wife of a Beatrice physician, and her four year old son were injured Friday when a car which the former was driving was struck by an automobile driven by George E Thomas. The Reilly child sustained a fractured skull and bruises about the body. Mrs. Reilly was cut about the face and head. Mr. Thomas was also slightly bruised. The accident occurred at Sixth and Washington streets, where a hedge fence obstructs the view.

Fremont Pioneer Dead.

FREMONT, Neb., March 3.—John H. Flambeck, seventy, pioneer Fremont merchant, passed away at his home here after a two days illness. His grocery store was one of the earliest to be established in Fremont. He was in business here for over thirty-three years.

BANKERS FRUSTRATE PLANS TO SWINDLE

California Sharpers Might Have Reaped Harvest From Bachelor Jim If Aurora Financiers Had Not Taken a Hand.

AURORA, Neb., March 3.—That the sharpers of California have not reaped a large reward in the shape of $17,000 from J. P. Larsen of Marquette in this county is entirely due to the villiance of P. J. Refshauge and J. J. Refshauge, two bankers of this city. Larsen, who is known as Bachelor Jim has considerable fortune, mostly invested in first mortgage loans, and he returned recently from California with a great desire to turn some of these securities into money.

He communicated his desire for money to the Refshauge brothers and for sometime refused to divulge the manner in which he intended to invest the $17,000. He told them he had to have $17,000 and that he wanted to hypothecate part of his securities and get this in real money, which he would carry back with him in his suit case.

The bankers finally secured from him a story of his proposed investment. Larsen had gone to California for the winter. There he happened to meet a stranger named Johnson who claimed to have been in the city but a short time and who claimed to be the owner of a ranch in Nebraska. Larsen and this stranger chummed around for a few days visiting the sights in Los Angeles and finally accidentally stumbled into a gambling joint operated by a man who claimed to be manager for a betting syndicate. This manager claimed to be drawing $75,000 a year salary and he agreed to let Johnson and Larsen in on the tips he had on horse racing if they would divide their winnings by giving him one-third.

Just to show how it could be done this accommodating stranger loaned Johnson and Larsen some money belonging to the syndicate and they played the ponies according to the tips he received and their winnings amounted to thousands of dollars. Of course, this money could not go to them because it was company money and the winnings from company money had to go to the company, so the accommodating stranger explained.

However, he suggested that Johnson and Larsen get some money and come back to Los Angeles and play the races on his tips and he would soon make millionaires out of them. So Johnson pretended to wire home for some money and Larsen came back to Marquette, got his securities out of his strong box and asked the bankers to touch them and turn them to greenbacks.

After a considerable discussion and debate Larsen realized that he was about to be fleeced and instead of taking $17,000 back with him he took a few hundred dollars together with a letter to some of the authorities and the next news that reached Aurora was that the sharpers had been caught by the police when in the very act of fleecing Larsen. His securities are now locked up again in his strong box and it will have to be an extra sharp sharper that can get him into this compromising situation again.

Little Flu at Fremont.

FREMONT, Neb., March 3.—While other sections of the state are stricken with light epidemics, Fremont is practically free from that ailment this year with only five cases registered during the month of February. In 1922, during the same month, sixty cases of influenza were reported to the local officials. Statistics show that Fremont has but one quarantine case every six days for a population of 10,000.

Deserts Baseball for Railroading.

BEATRICE, Neb., March 3.—Jiggs Parker, member of the Beatrice state league baseball team last season, has accepted a job with the Rock Island at Fairbury and will quit baseball.

Legion to Give a Play.

WEST POINT, Neb., March 3.—The American Legion of West Point will give another play entitled "Nearly Married" shortly after Easter.

WANT CATTLE YARDS MOVED

Grand Island People Ask for Injunction, Claiming It Detrimental to Residence District.

GRAND ISLAND, Neb., March 3.—A second injunction suit in which the issue is the use of property allegedly detrimental to residence purposes was filed here Friday when forty-one residents of the second ward asked for a restraining order against Henry Falldorf, owner, and Claude Doran, manager, of the Pray Bros. stockfeeders, from continuing a cattle feeding lot just outside the city limits.

The complaint is based on the alleged nuisance of noxious odors carried by the breeze from that direction. The feeding lots are some blocks distant from the nearest residence but plans have been perfected to develop the vacant blocks into residence sections.

A similar issue is involved in the horse barns section. Another case was that in which a morgue and funeral home was placed in a residence section. In the latter case, the temporary injunction was sustained. In the present case, unlike the others, the property used for allegedly objectionable purpose is outside the city limits. Owing to numerous cases of such a nature the council recently passed a zoning ordinance.

FREMONT CLUB AT LONG BEACH

Ross Hammond Main Speaker of the Occasion.

FREMONT, Neb., March 3.—Over one hundred former Fremonters, members of the Fremont, Neb., picnic club of southern California, recently met at Long Beach, Cal., to renew friendships made in the Cornhusker state and revive memories of life in Nebraska.

E. C. Misner, president of the club, introduced Ross L. Hammond, former editor of the Fremont Tribune and at present publisher of the Riverside, Cal., Press, as the main speaker of the occasion. Former citizens of Dodge and surrounding counties made it a point to gather at the annual picnic observed by the adopted "native sons."

DOANE STUDENT IS WINNER

OMAHA, March 3.—Lumer Kuncl, Doane college student, will represent Nebraska colleges at the western divisional contest of the western collegiate oratorical association. Kuncl last night won the Nebraska oratorical association contest, defeating representatives of eight other Nebraska colleges. Kuncl's subject was "Back-Firing Bolshevism."

William Parkinson of Nebraska Wesleyan, whose subject was "The Challenge of the Poppies," was second, and Francis Charvat, Creighton university, who spoke on "The Ku Klux Klan," third.

Other speakers finished in the following order:

William F. Talbot, Hastings college, "The Cross Roads of Industry;" Miss Hannah Klotsche, Midland college, "Still Traveling to Congress by Stage Coach;" Miss Bertha Mae Kirk, Grand Island college, "The Dawn;" Miss Elsie Lomax, Cotner, "One of These Little Things," and Miss Bernice Wilson, York college, "The Hebrew-American."

The judges were Justice George A. Day of Nebraska supreme court; Rev. J. R. Perkins of Council Bluffs, and J. H. Sweet, editor of the Nebraska City Press.

Hogs Overheated March 1.

FREMONT, Neb., March 3.—An unprecedented record for the month of March was reported here by the Northwestern railroad with the information that six hogs died from overheating March 1 while enroute to market in a regulation stock car.

The hogs were unusually heavy, some tipping the beam at 700 pounds, and were shipped in anticipation of zero weather. Indeed, the mercury flitted around the 80 degree mark. Despite attempts to save the hogs by pouring cold water on them, six succumbed to the effects of heat.

SALINE COUNTY TO HAVE NURSE

Amy Macowan of Fillmore Speaks Before Organization.

GENEVA, Neb., March 3.—On invitation from the parent-teacher association at Western, Miss Amy Macowan, Fillmore county Red Cross nurse, talked on the purpose and value of public health nursing this week before the association and members of the Red Cross. As a result, a movement will be started to secure a county nurse for Saline county.

Miss Macowan has been making examinations in pupils in the schools of this county for the past four months. The work was launched in October. During November 296 pupils examined were found to have defects and parents on being notified corrected 107. During February examinations were made in the country schools and at Strang, Milligan and Geneva. No report has been made on Geneva as the examination is not complete. In the country and other towns, for last month 348 out of 445 were shown to be defective. Parents and teachers are cooperating with the nurse in the health work. The way was paved for the extensive work in the county by a health campaign fostered by the extension service in October when Dr. Caroline H. Hedger spent two days giving talks in various parts of Fillmore county.

Long to Succeed Judge Brown.

NELSON, Neb., March 3.—The county commissioners appointed M. F. Long to succeed the late County Judge E. D. Brown. Mr. Long has been clerk of the district court for a number of years. O. L. Aiken takes the position of clerk of the court.

Wilkins, principal; Miss Alida Johnson, Latin and English; Miss Florence Thorp, normal training; Miss Margaret Pendergast, domestic science; Edward B. Schmidt, mathematics; Oliver P. Rosenan, chemistry and Coach Anna Lindenmeyer, eighth grade; Lucile Lindenmeyer, sixth grade; Hazel Zigafoos, fourth and fifth; Vinnie Shawkey, primary and first grade.

Jefferson Farmers Meet.

FAIRBURY, Neb., March 3. — A quarterly meeting of the farmers' union of Jefferson county met Thursday at the court house with a fair attendance.

Frank S. Wells, a farmer who is representative of this county was present and favored the audience with a line up of what the Nebraska legislature is endeavoring to do for the farmers.

Henry Kiel, a representative of the Farmers' Union Live Stock company of Missouri also had a place on the program.

The president was instructed to appoint committees on "Roads, schools," and also one to confer with the fair board managers to request that one day of the fair each year be designated "Farmers' day."

LINCOLN WINS FROM OMAHA

Local High School Debaters Are Awarded Honors by Vote of Two to One of Judges.

The Lincoln high school won honors from the Omaha "Tech" in an inter-school debate held Friday evening in Lincoln. The successful team was composed of Warren Schwenker, Douglas Orr and George Johnson. The decision was two to one in favor of Lincoln. The subject for debate was "The Kansas Industrial Court." The Lincoln high had the affirmative. A second debate getween the two schools will be held at Omaha later in the season.

FACTS ABOUT SCHOOL COSTS

COSTS ALLIANCE $1,800 TO GRADUATE A PUPIL.

Over $700 a Day Spent in Providing Educational Facilities for Pupils in City Schools.

ALLIANCE, Neb., March 3.—Delving further into the facts and figures of the chart recently tabulated by City Manager N. A. Kemmish, one finds many things that should prove interesting to the taxpayers of Alliance with relation to the city schools.

When the new school building is properly equipped and in running order, $127,700 will be required annually to pay the operating expenses, the interest, provide a sinking fund to retire the bonds and the interest on present outstanding warrants. Of this amount $94,000 will go to operation and $33,700 to the interest charge.

Figuring an approximate average daily attendance of 1,277 pupils in all grades, the cost will be $100 per annum for each child.

With 180 days of school in the school year it costs the taxpayers $708 for each school day. Carrying these figures further, the cost is $118 per hour, or $2 per minute. It is also interesting to note that the cost is 10 cents per hour for each pupil in the city schools.

The annual Christmas vacation costs $7,080, or a cost of $5.50 for each pupil. To close the schools for half a day, it costs $354. This is 28 cents for each pupil.

For every graduate of the Alliance high school, the taxpayers have an investment of almost $1,800, figuring the yearly cost, plus the compound interest for twelve years.

The average business place works 48 hours each week, the schools 30 hours a week. Business places operate 313 days each year, the schools operate 180 days, or just one-third of the time.

If the average salary paid teachers in the grade schools is $1,200 that is $1.10 per hour for the 1,080 hours of work. The rate for high school teachers is $1.30 per hour. These figures take into consideration only the actual hours worked during the hours of school and do not include work done after school closes which is very often necessary.

Using the government's estimate of the percentage of wage earners to the total population we find that there are approximately 1,200 wage earners in Alliance. The average cost to the wage earner is then $106. This means that on the average each wage earner, including both men and women, must contribute a month's work each year toward the support of the schools.

BRIEF STATE NEWS.

Glenwood, Ia.—E. Seeley, manager of flouring mills at University Place and Papillion, has been here this week looking into conditions with reference to establishing a flour and feed store here. He formerly had such an establishment in Glenwood.

Aurora—The Ford car which was stolen from L. E. Luthy from in front of the Methodist church last Sunday evening has been recovered in Kearney, Neb. Chief of Police C. E. Trump printed a large number of postal cards containing description and number of the car and mailed them out to the police in all directions. The result is the return of the car to Luthy.

A Present to Son.

It isn't success if it costs you the companionship and chumminess and love of your children. Very often busy, wealthy men of momentous affairs discover too late that they have sacrificed the finest thing in life, the affection of their family. Let me relate an incident recently told me which contains a priceless suggestion for many ultra-busy business men. Frank J. Baker, prominent public utility executive of Illinois, told a friend that he was going to give his young son an unusual Christmas present. "I'm going," said Mr. Baker, "to write my boy a letter telling him that, as a Christmas present, I'm going to give him an hour of my time every day." He added that he had been doing a lot of thinking on the subject, and felt that he owed this to his son.

Alas, Mr. Baker died two weeks later.

I work at least an average of twelve hours a day, but I never fail to find time to romp with my little fellows or to tell them stories—"grand new ones"—after they are ready for bed. I wouldn't forego this pleasure for the sake of any amount of money. Wealth is an excellent thing to possess if earned honestly and utilized sensibly. But wealth won at the expense of health or family affection isn't wealth but poverty, poverty of heart, poverty of soul.

You don't need to wait until next Christmas to pledge this kind of a gift to your children.—B. C. Forbes, in Forbes Magazine.

MY MARRIAGE PROBLEMS

Adele Garrison's New Phase of

Revelations of a Wife

Copyright, 1923, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

What Jim Told Katie About His Decision to Come Home.

"It isn't very much to tell," Jim began deprecatingly, "and I'm thinking you'll find it hard to believe, but just as sure as I'm standing here, it all happened today exactly as Katie said just now. I was sitting on a boat this morning with my head in my hands. I was worrying a lot about her—" he gestured toward his wide-eyed wife.

"And," he drew a long breath, "I was wondering what was best to do. And then I heard her voice call my name twice—just as plain as I heard her speak just now. It was so real I looked up and all around to see if perhaps she had found out where I was. Then I was sure I had been dreaming. I couldn't figure it out any other way. But I made up my mind I wasn't going to wait an hour longer to come back. And now to think Katie saw me sitting there and really did call me! How do you explain that, ma'am?" He looked in bewildered fashion at Lillian.

"We don't explain those things, Jim," Lillian said gently. "We only know that sometimes when people love each other very greatly, things happen to them such as you and Katie described just now. Mrs. Graham and I are very glad you heard her call you and decided to come back. She needs you. We have been worrying about her."

"I'll Tell Him Everything."

"I ought to have come back long before," Jim said contritely. "But then I'd get to thinking of the way things were when I left, and I didn't know what was right to do. I didn't want—"

"There's an explanation coming to you, Jim," I said briskly, "and when you get it I'm sure your mind will be easy. Now, suppose you go upstairs to your rooms and rest a bit while you're waiting for your supper. It won't be long, for Mrs. Underwood and I will help Katie get it. And then we'll all have a little talk."

He looked at me oddly. I think he realized that Lillian and I did not wish to give him an opportunity to see Katie alone until we had assisted in the explanation due him.

"Thank you," he said gratefully, and turning, clumped up the kitchen stairs in his old familiar fashion. Katie, with her face paling, spoke in low, nervous tones as the sound of his closing door came to our ears.

"You tell heem, please," she said.

Jim Is Not Hungry.

Katie considered a half-minute.

"I broil heem slice ham, und fry some eggs, und varm oop potatoes vay he likes, und heat some dose muffins, und make some coffee, and varm dose apple dumplings, und—"

"I think that ought to hold him for tonight at least," Lillian laughed. "Go to it, Katie! I'll set Jim's place at the table here."

"I'll slice the potatoes," I volunteered, and with both of us assisting Katie she was able to put a bountiful meal on the table in record time.

I ran up the stairs and summoned Jim with a low call, for I had no desire to waken Mother Graham.

There was a hint of shyness in his manner as he came back into the kitchen, but Lillian soon banished that with questions concerning the town in which he had worked while away, and he tackled his supper boldly.

I always have considered Jim a valiant trencherman, but I soon saw that despite his long trip without food he was not doing full justice to the meal. Katie watched him with troubled eyes.

"You no like my cookin' any more, Jeem?" she asked sorrowfully.

"It's better than ever, Katie, girl," he reassured her. "But—I'm not very hungry, I guess."

"Drink your coffee," I commanded, and Katie, put the rest of his dinner where it will keep hot. He will feel more like eating it in a few minutes."

Jim turned to me with both pain and humility written in his face.

"I—I can't help thinking about things, ma'am, but—I—I don't want you to think that Katie needs to tell me anything. I fought that out with myself today. I didn't ever intend to ask her anything more."

Diary of a Fashion Model

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

She Describes a White Evening Gown of Youthful Charm.

It may be difficult, but I have my heart set on using it." I heard this remark float out from Madame's salon as I passed by.

"Oh, no, I don't think it will be difficult," Madame replied. "I have a lovely design in mind all ready."

She caught sight of me and sent me on an errand, as Madame is wont to do when one gets underfoot.

"Get me that bolt of ivory satin, like a good girl," she said in her sweetest tone, and there was nothing I could do but obey.

When I returned with it, Miss Miller, who was ordering the dress, was holding forth on the subject of heirlooms.

"Of course, this is lovely lace," she was saying, "but cut it if necessary. I don't see any need of ruining the lines of a dress just because I'm too stingy to cut the lace that trims it."

"Many persons don't agree with you on that subject," Madame said with a smile. "The struggles I've had, trying to make several yards of ancestral lace appear tasteful when used on a frock where one yard would be ample!"

"Well, if I were thinking of future generations, perhaps I'd want to save it, too, but I'm not," the modern miss declared.

A Real Lace Bertha Distinguishes This Ivory Satin Frock.

"I know," the young owner agreed. "Mother thought perhaps I ought to save it for a wedding dress or something, but just now a frock for my debut seems much more important to me."

"It will be lovely," she breathed.

"I know I shall love it," the sub-deb agreed. "I like slim, long things that fit the figure well."

"I'll have the designer sketch it if you want to wait," Madame offered.

"While that's being done, do let me show you my new slippers," the young client said. "I have them with me and I think they're attractive."

She dived over to the corner of the room and returned with a package. "I loathe bundles, but I like these slippers so well I wanted to take them home with me," she explained.

The package revealed white satin slippers brocaded in silver and cut along ultra-smart lines.

"Don't you think these three points of material for the buckle are attractive?" the client asked.

I for one, agreed, while she put her little foot into the dance slipper so we could see how it cut down very low at the sides and came up high over the heel to tie at the ankle.

"I'll probably need a new pair to wear with my white frock," she said. "I expect to give these hard wear."

I smiled at her youthful enthusiasm and decided she was peppy enough to be a very successful debutante.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
Commissioner of Health, New York City
U. S. Senator-Elect from New York State

FOODSTUFFS would be of no more use to the human body than stones or dirt if they were incapable of solution. Until they're dissolved they are valueless. All the bodily acts having to do with the reception of nourishment are associated with the necessity of dissolving the food.

First we chew the food thoroughly, thus mixing it with the saliva. Next we swallow it, so that the fluids of the stomach may act upon it. Then it passes into the intestines, where the bile and other juices attack it.

As the food is thus prepared and dissolved, it is taken up by the body, furnishing the fuel and nourishment essential to life itself. All the parts incapable of solution are thrown out as so much waste material. Like the clinker and ash in the furnace, the unusual matter is only a nuisance to be gotten rid of in the shortest and easiest way possible.

The almost universal solvent is water. While there are some substances that are unaffected by it, the great majority are capable of being dissolved by water.

The acids generated in the body and necessary to digestion, require water for their making. Water enters into combination with every chemical substance. Indeed, the extreme solvent power of water causes it to take up substances so readily that absolutely pure water is rarely met.

This remarkable solvent power makes water invaluable to the body, but, outside the body, subjects it to the possibility of absorbing poisonous substances. Likewise, in its flow water may pick up harmful germs. Surface water is subject to contamination and should always be viewed with suspicion. On this account, springs and shallow wells should never be employed for drinking purposes until the water has been analyzed.

About two-thirds of the weight of the human body is water. Like water outside the body this will grow stale if not frequently changed. You cannot be healthy unless you supply yourself every day with an abundance of pure water. Make sure of the supply and then make free use of it for drinking and bathing purposes.

There have been many arguments over the propriety of drinking water during meals. Forget all about these discussions and do not hesitate to drink at least one glassful at each meal. A second glass will do no harm.

The best-grounded objection to the free use of water at meal-times is that many persons use water to soften the food instead of depending on the chewing and saliva. The starches require the saliva in order to begin their digestion. The teeth are needed to give fineness to the food. Drink the water, but do not use it to rob the food of the necessary action of teeth and saliva.

There are some diseases in which water-drinking is harmful. Certain heart and kidney conditions are made worse by the excessive use of water.

Healthy persons, however, must have an abundant supply, and without such supply health will surely suffer.

Every adult should take at least two quarts of water during every 24 hours.

Many a crying baby is making his call for water. Young mothers sometimes forget that thirst is just as urgent as hunger.

We cannot live without water and we cannot thrive without liberal quantities of this precious liquid.

Answers to Health Questions

S. M. Q—Kindly tell me what causes the face to burn at times.

A—I cannot advise you, as you do not give sufficient details about the condition. Restate your question and describe your symptoms in detail and enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope and I will gladly advise you.

* * *

MRS. S. S. Q—Will you please tell me whether or not bicarbonate of soda taken every day is harmful?

A—Unless your physician has prescribed this for you, you should not take it so frequently. If you are suffering from hyperacidity, restate your question and enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope and full particulars on the treatment of this condition will be furnished.

* * *

DAILY READER. Q—I have been told that I have thyroid deficiency. Will you please tell me what to do for this?

2—I am 21 years of age and am 5 feet 11 inches tall. What should my correct weight be?

A—If you have this trouble you should consult a physician for an examination and treatment.

2—A man of the age and height you mention should weigh about 167 pounds, a woman about 152 pounds.

* * *

A. H. J. Q—Can anything be done to make an Adam's apple less prominent?

A—This is due to anatomical formation and nothing can be done to change it.

* * *

C. K. Q—I am subject to frequent attacks of heart flutter. Will you please tell me what to do for this?

A—This is a condition that requires treatment by a competent physician. Keep your general health built up and be careful not to become over-fatigued or over-worked. Avoid excitement and worry.

* * *

MRS. E. T. Q—Will you please tell me whether it is best to cook rolled-oats or eat them raw?

A—It is better to cook the rolled-oats.

* * *

S. L. Q—As soon as the cold weather sets in my hands get red and become swollen and cause me great discomfort.

A—This condition is due to poor circulation. You should keep your general health built up by eating good, nourishing food and take daily outdoor exercise. Practice deep breathing, and as a tonic take cod liver oil.

Good Night Stories

by Blanche Silver

DORIS MEETS A FUNNY LITTLE DOG.

"P-R-A-I-R-I-E DOG," Doris spelled out the sign slowly, then she glanced at the mound of dirt behind the iron rods. "What kind of a dog is that, I'd like to know, anyway?"

"Then I'm just in time, I guess," laughed a happy voice, and Squeedee, the little elfin from Joyland, squirmed out from the bushes where he had been hiding. "I thought it was about time you were needing me."

"I should say you are right on time, Squeedee," Doris answered catching the tiny elfin by the hand. "The sign says there's a prairie dog in here, but I can't see anything except that mound of dirt. They must have taken him out, I guess. What's a prairie dog, anyway, Squeedee?"

Squeedee hopped upon the top rod of the cage and blew three times on the magic whistle hanging from his belt, and out from the doorway on the other side of the mound of dirt there poked a queer little grayish-brown nose.

"Hello, there, Prairie Dog, old fellow," called Squeedee, jumping down beside Doris once more on the outside of the cage. "Come on out and be sociable when you have nice callers."

Up came the little furry head of Prairie Dog with his wiggly nose and bright eyes. He spied Squeedee and came hustling out to greet him.

"Well, well, if it isn't my old friend, Squeedee," he chuckled. "Who's your friend?"

"Little Doris," replied Squeedee, politely. "She has never seen a prairie dog before."

"All right, my dear," Mr. Prairie Dog laughed merrily. "Just have a good look. You see, in our wild state, very few folks ever get a glimpse of us."

"Did you live in funny mounds like the one you came from?" Doris asked.

"Indeed, I did," replied Mr. Prairie Dog. "I live in the very same kind of a house, only out on the prairie we live in great colonies. You'll see our burrows about 15 feet apart and you'll find a wee path running from each of them to our next-door neighbor's place. It really looks like a little village."

"Who's Your Friend?"

"And you never get lonesome for your friends and relatives?" Doris asked, smoothing his lovely brown fur.

"It would be folly to say I don't miss them," sighed Mr. Prairie Dog. "For I do. But there's one thing here. I never have to fear being dug up by horrid dogs or bad men. I must confess we are a nuisance, for we take up a great space of ground, and sometimes the cattle don't see our holes and fall into them and break their legs.

"This, of course, makes the farmers angry, and they try their best to destroy us, either by poisoning us or by putting dynamite into our holes and blowing up our villages. Here I have none of that fear. I'm treated kindly by every one, so I guess I can stand the lonesomeness all right."

Just then the keeper came up to feed Mr. Prairie Dog, and Doris and Squeedee moved on, after promising to come back and chat again some other day.

WINIFRED BLACK Writes About Women Are Women

Copyright, 1923, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Winifred Black

"WELL, now," said the pleasant little person in the pleasant little gown and the agreeable little hat, "I'm learning something every minute—and, dear me, when I was twenty, I thought I knew it all!"

"What have you learned today?" asked one who was not without human curiosity.

"I've learned why girls run away with chauffeurs," said the pleasant little person. "Rich girls, I mean, society girls, the sort you are always reading about in the newspapers, and I've had two friends whose daughters—don't you know.

"Why, it's really quite unsettling—and I've always been so shocked and puzzled and thought there must be something wrong with the girls!

"But this morning I walked down Fifth avenue, and I passed the most fashionable church in town and it was raining.

"And it was time for the end of the service, and all the chauffeurs were standing by the church door, in a row—holding umbrellas for those who were coming out.

A Keen Observation

"And they were smart, and neat, and their cheeks were red, and they had bright eyes. And—let me tell you something—they all had broad shoulders, and each stood as straight as a soldier when the colonel is reviewing a troop.

"They looked so husky, and healthy, and masculine and virile—and just as I was thinking that, out came the girls and the women, and the young men and the old men.

"And the old men were pursy and bow-windowed, or else they were stringy and cadaverous, with big veins in their hands and thin necks.

"And the young men were pale and pasty and hollow-eyed, and not a single one of them stood up straight—like a man.

"Every one of them sunk in at the waist, like an old-fashioned girl, and if it wasn't for their height, they really looked more like girls than they did like men. And now I know why the society girls sometimes fall in love with the chauffeurs.

"He looks like a man, anyhow, and not like a little marionette strung on wires, or a figure in a window made to show off the latest things in English mackintoshes, or the really smart idea in the way of golf outfits.

We're Women Before We're Ladies

"I suppose I'm sort of old-fashioned, but I do love to have a man look like a man, and act like a man.

"I even like to smell cigars—yes, even an old pipe—better than I do the smell of a cigarette.

"Hopeless—eh, what?"

And somehow, do you know, I found myself saying: "Hear! Hear! Carry on!"

I wonder if the modern girls are so awfully different from the old-fashioned girls, after all?

Do they really like these ladylike young men, or do they just pretend to like them because they are all they can get?

Oh, yes, money and position and education—family and tradition and all that kind of thing—they count—they have to count in the scale of happiness. A girl who marries a man with different ideas and different ideals from hers—I wonder if she's ever really quite happy.

I wonder if the average girl can wear silk and lie upon satin and be happy and contented if she marries a man who can't afford to buy her anything but cotton and gingham?

And books and pictures and music—these things are a vital part of life, too, and they cost money, and they mean education and culture.

But, all the same, I can quite understand myself how a natural girl can look at a straight, broad-shouldered, red-cheeked man and see that he's a man and a good-looking one and wish that her Bertie or her Sydney was just a little bit more like—er—a—well, to be plain about it, like the chauffeur who stands so straight in the rain and waits for her so sturdily at the church door.

For women are, after all, women—before they are ladies. Isn't it strange how we are always trying to pretend that we've forgotten all about that?

HOME-MAKING HELPS

"Everything About the House Helps to Make the Home"

By WANDA BARTON

Here Are Various Ways to Keep the House Bright and Shining.

IT is one thing to own a nice home and another to keep a nice home bright and shining.

Looking-glasses are quickly cleaned with a soft, wet chamois and may be easily polished with wads of tissue paper. We need not wait for the regular cleaning day, for at odd moments much may be accomplished. A number of mirrors can be cleaned in a half-hour.

If the silver is cleaned thoroughly every other week, it may be washed the off week with silver soap and polished with dry, soft cloths. A little piece of camphor gum put into the silver closet will help keep silver bright.

If there are no special creams or polishes at hand, whiting mixed into a paste with a little ammonia and water will do nicely, provided the silver is not very black.

Different sorts of bric-a-brac require different methods of cleaning. Almost all china and glass ornaments may be placed in a wooden dishtub and washed with lukewarm, soapy water. A soft brush should be used carefully on the ornamentation. They should be rinsed carefully and dried with a soft cloth. This does not have to be done very often, possibly only three times a year, but it must be done by careful hands.

Bronzes may be brushed with a soft brush. If they are still dirty, they may be washed also, in lukewarm water and dried with soft cloths.

Wooden picture frames that are dull may be cleaned with furniture polish on a soft cloth. White frames should be re-enamelled. Gilt ones, if very shabby, will have to be done over, silver ones can be cleaned.

Finger-marks on white woodwork, plain white paint or enamelled woodwork are easily removed by washing the woodwork lightly and quickly with a clean cloth, wrung out of hot water and a little white soap. When cleaning the white baseboard, brush it free from dust, then clean it in the same way, holding a strip of blotting paper against the wall above to protect the wall paper.

In cleaning brasses, a good homemade paste can be mixed, consisting of one ounce of oxalic acid, two ounces of rotten-stone, 1½ ounces of sweet oil and enough spirits of turpentine to mix to a paste. Rub this mixture on with a soft cloth and wipe it off and polish the brass with a clean cloth. If it is very dirty, the brass may be washed off first with hot soap-suds. Then the paste may be used.

Many persons who are acquiring now and then a few pieces of old pewter will find that it is wise to wash this ware in warm, soapy water after using it, then to dry it off with a little wheat-bran and a soft cloth. If it is very dirty, a paste made of whiting and alcohol will clean the pewter if rubbed in well. Rub the pewter afterward with a soft polishing cloth.

Aluminum may be cleaned or brightened by a paste made of 30 grams of borax and one of water, with a few drops of ammonia added. Of course, wire-wool will remove all rough places and discolorations due to burned food.

Copper is always a pleasure to keep bright, for it repays one for the trouble. It always seems such a prosperous and thrifty sort of material. No wonder, old-fashioned housewives coveted it and hotel kitchens are famous for their supply! If the copper is very dirty, make a paste of flour, a little salt and vinegar. Smear the articles with this paste, then wash them in hot, soapy water and polish them with clean soft cloths.

Attention to these small details of cleaning will make a great difference in the whole house.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By ANNIE LAURIE

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a wife of 18, and have a dear baby boy 3 months old. I have been married 20 months.

My husband never seems to care for me as he used to. He loves the baby very much. When I ask him to take me and the baby out he refuses. He says that if the baby was a little older he would take him out. My husband goes out, himself, every night. I ask him why he goes out. He says it's none of my business. Please tell me why. I love him very much.

LONESOME DISCARDED WIFE.

LONESOME DISCARDED WIFE: Make your home and yourself so attractive that your husband will not care to leave you, my dear. Don't mope or brood over his going out, or even question him. Try acting toward him as you did when you were engaged. This plan will work I am sure. Good luck!

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

We are two chums, and are both 17 years of age. We are going to high school, and like two young men very much. They seem to like us, but never call at our homes. What shall we do to gain their friendship?

A. E. and O. U.

A. E. and O. U.: Invite the young men to call at your homes. This is the only proper way to start a friendship with them.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

SUNDAY AND MONDAY, MARCH 4-5.

Sunday's horoscope emphasizes the prospect of social activities, although these should be entertained with a degree of discretion, lest there be some sensational experience. Shun all risk of money and speculation.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of unusual experiences, particularly in a social or domestic way. Business may be quiet, but avoid speculation. A child born on this day will be successful in business, but may incline strongly to pleasure and society unless carefully trained.

Monday's astrological chart points to an eventful day, but one of fluctuating fortunes. While sudden and important events may occur, yet troubles may threaten. New enterprises and speculation should be avoided for immediate operation, but opportunities may be referred for future negotiation. Defer contracts.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of important opportunity, which they should take under advisement rather than adopt for immediate agreements. The prospects are good for future reference. A child born on this day will be clever and versatile, but may be disposed to be somewhat impulsive unless carefully trained early in life.

WORDS of WISE MEN

He that judges without informing himself to the utmost of what he is capable, cannot acquit himself of judging amiss.

* * *

* * *

That day your right to friendship ends.

* * *

Let your thoughts be well dressed if you would have them move in good company.

* * *

* * *

For one man who can stand prosperity, there are a hundred that will stand adversity.

* * *

* * *

Obstinacy in opinions holds the door-matist in the cowins of error, without hope of emancipation.

* * *

* * *

Men are tormented with the opinions they have of things and not by the things themselves.

* * *

* * *

We praise the things we hear with much more willingness than those we see, because we envy the present and reverence the past.

There is a limit at which forbearance ceases to be a virtue.

YOUR PROBLEMS

By Mary Gordon

Dear Mary Gordon: Please give me your very best advice, because if you don't I fear I shall lose the dearest thing on earth.

The story begins eighteen months ago when I met a young girl on the train. She was in great trouble and I took her home with me. My mother and sister made her welcome and in a few days her baby was born. The young mother died a few hours later.

I sent word to her people. They sent back a message, telling us to bury her and saying they had cast her off and wished to hear nothing more of her.

Many of my earnings went to support the baby. Ten months ago I was married. My husband knows the baby's history. He loves her as I do.

A few weeks ago the girl's sister and I happened to be in the same town. She saw the baby and fell in love with her. Now she wants to take her away from me. My husband and I are both determined to fight it, but we don't know how to go about it.

Do you think it right that those who turned their backs on the young mother when she needed them should be allowed her child? I could not love this child more if she were my own. My husband feels the same way.

A. Legally adopt the child and then no one can take her from you. See a lawyer at once and tell him the whole story. He will help you. The sister, from what you say, has no moral right to the baby; strengthen your right by legal action.

Dear Mary Gordon: I have been very much interested in your column and come to you for advice. I'm a girl eighteen years old and live in the country. My mother died eight years ago. My father married soon after and my stepmother is hateful and mean to me. I try to treat her as nice as I can but it doesn't seem to do any good.

I think each day I can't stay any longer. I have two married sisters who both live far away. I asked them what to do and they won't advise me. I have only an eighth grade education and can't cook much nor sew as my stepmother says not. I wanted to go to high school like other girls did.

When I say anything to my father he won't pay any attention to me. I do not go any place only to town with them.

Shall I stay or leave and what can I do to get a better education? I will look for your answer soon.—Unhappy.

A. If you are willing to work, I see no reason why you cannot secure a better education. Perhaps even in your home town or some place nearby you could find a home in which to work while you are attending high school, or business college.

Try to convince your father how much an education means to you, how sincere you are in your determination to work for it if he won't help you. Ask him what would happen to you if he were to die and you would be left alone with no training of any kind to provide for yourself.

Strong determination is all you need to continue your schooling. Lots of boys and girls here in Lincoln have demonstrated that.

If you care to come to Lincoln for your work, send me your name and address and I will be glad to do all I can to find you a place where you can work for your room and board and advise you as to schools and studies.

Dear Mary Gordon: I am a high school girl in my teens and am worried constantly by a foolish mistake which I made.

Not long ago a young man whom I had met before at a party and who had paid special attention to me, called and asked if he might see me that afternoon. I gave my consent and as my folks think he is very nice, everything would have been alright if I had used my better judgment.

The young man asked me to kiss him but as I never had allowed this sort of thing with young men, I refused.

But he insisted and as I care a great deal for him, I finally consented, and this is where all the trouble began. Since that time he hasn't called me up or paid any attention to me whatsoever and thus added to my shame from letting him kiss me. I am heartbroken over losing his respect.

I talked things over with mother but she advised me to come to you. So what can I do to keep from obtaining a bad reputation and gaining my self respect again. How could I show this man in a tactful manner that I was sorry for my act, without seeming to be a prude?

When I told my girl friend about it she just laughed and said that I would have to quit worrying over such nonsense that you had to kiss young men to be popular with them, but in my case this didn't seem to work. So I'm terribly puzzled. Please advise me what to do.—Self Contempt.

A. Invite the young man to call on you, my dear and be just as nice to him as you know how. Perhaps this will straighten matters out. If he should attempt to kiss you again, then have a frank talk with him saying that you regret your mistake but that you would like very much to have his friendship on a purely friendly basis, omitting all love-making.

Dear Mary Gordon: 1. Who should send a greeting first, the young man or lady?

2. Is it courteous for a young lady to ask the man to accompany her to church, if they are intimate friends?

3. If the young man's birthday is before the lady's, should she send him a present first, either before they are engaged or after?

4. Is it right for her to send her picture?—Happy.

2. Yes.

3. Not unless they are engaged.

4. It is unwise to give your photograph to a man unless you are engaged to him.

A sub-deb: You a modern girl and ask me such a question? If I couldn't handle a parent better than that, I should never admit it!

NEW A LOVER OF HUNTING

WASHINGTON, March 3.—"Lame ducks" drafted for the cabinet generally accept their destiny with fatalistic calm and a passing mention of the great wisdom of their selection. But there are exceptions to all rules.

Given his choice of a job in the cabinet of a place in the north woods, Harry Stewart New, senator from Indiana, would take to the tall timber. But—

Harry New is a military man. For proof, see the trick campaign hat, black felt for winter and Panama for summer. He was a good soldier in the Spanish-American war and has been a life-long member of the G. O. P. army.

Chosen as aide-de-camp by his commander-in-chief, Warren G. Harding, an old buddy at whose side he fought in the ranks, Harry New could not evade the draft. When duty calls, he does not flinch from the fire.

Furthermore, postmasters general are forever afterward called "General," and that to a military man like Harry New should be some compensation for his thwarted ambition to become a backwoodsman.

Being born a Hoosier, New started talking politics before he started cutting teeth. By the same token he has had more than his share of political honors. But it is not political honors for which Harry New's heart has always yearned.

Yearns for the Woods.

While he was a cub reporter batting out copy on the old Indianapolis Journal, which he later owned, or directing a national campaign for the republican committee, of which he was chairman in 1908, New's heart was in the big woods.

Forty years ago, Harry New and a few good fellows with similar yearnings, formed a hunting and fishing club with headquarters at Turtle lake, way up on the Michigan peninsula, where you can still follow the trails for days and never see a white man.

Every chance he gets, New slips off to Turtle lake to beat the brush and whip the streams. There in the solitude, with the big trees around him and game on every side, the dearest boyhood dreams which he has never outgrown are fulfilled.

Loves Hunting.

To Harry New, big game—like cabinet jobs and senatorships—cannot give the thrill that comes when he sees a partridge rumble from what seemed an impossible hit and watches for the praise in the eyes of his old dog as he brings the bird proudly to New's hand.

Harry New would rather hear the splash of a trout as he strikes the fly or the song of the reel as strong bass unwinds the light line than the plaudits of the multitude. He would rather hob-nob with backwoodsmen than ambassadors.

Last year he left Washington in the dead of winter to go to Turtle lake and preach a lay funeral sermon over his dead friend—the manager of the club. Not long ago, a half-breed Indian guide from the camp came to see the capital. New dropped everything and for two days took his redskin buddy on a sight-seeing tour de luxe, including an introduction to the great white father in the white house.

Harry New looks and talks like a revised edition of the late Champ Clark. After looking him over and hearing him talk for six years, Washington conferred upon him the order of "R. H. B."—real human being—the highest honor within the gift of a cynical city. It was a reward for traits that come in just as handy in the cabinet as in the big woods.

Governor Bryan has issued a requisition for the return of Dave James from Sidney, Ia., to Nemaha county, to answer the charge of perjury. The county attorney alleged James testified falsely as a witness in a criminal suit of the state vs. John Doe, in that he said he did not strike Matt Long and knock him from a buggy. The testimony was given September 5, 1922, and that James fled December 1, 1922.

Ross R. Robinson was bound over to district court by Justice of Peace W. A. Hawes Saturday forenoon. He was released on $1,000 bond. He faces a charge of wife and child abandonment. He pleaded innocence when arraigned on February 14 and was held in jail until last Tuesday when he furnished bond. His surety is J. H. Humpe. It is alleged in the complaint that the defendant left his wife, Catherine, and three minor children on January 1.

Charles C. Galloway objects to paying the $500 verdict that a Douglas county jury gave against him in favor of Amanda Holmes, tenant in a house he owns at 2417 Caldwell street, and has appealed to the supreme court. In that house is a stairway leading to the cellar and as is often the case with cellar stairs one of them was defective. It gave way beneath Mrs. Holmes, and she suffered a broken arm and was unable to sleep. She said that Galloway had agreed to keep the house in repairs, and so she sued him for $10,000 damages. Galloway says he never did anything of the kind and that the condition of the stairway was so open and obvious that in law the woman was negligent when she was hurt.

PEOPLE YOU KNOW.

In a letter to a friend at the state house Rev. J. H. Presson tells of the long illness of his wife and her death at their home in Omaha Friday. "Last evening," said the letter, "she said she wanted to go and did not want the doctor to do anything to keep her here. God bless her, she has been so brave about everything—and now while I am writing this she passed away and is no longer with me, and the world seems lonely and I suffer an irreparable loss." Short funeral services were held at the family home in Omaha Saturday. Interment is to take place Sunday at Stromsburg.

State Superintendent J. M. Matzen has returned from Papillion where he assisted in dedicating a school house costing $30,000. It is a two story structure adjoining the present school. The first floor contains a gymnasium and auditorium and is intended to serve as a community room. Arthur F. Becker is superintendent. Ten teachers are employed. The school is now in class B, but the state superintendent says it is eligible to class A.

Frank D. Tomson will represent the chamber of commerce Tuesday at a meeting in Sioux City where navigation problems of the Missouri river will be considered. Major Gee of Kansas City, government engineer in charge of navigation, will confer with chamber of commerce representatives from cities along the river and nearby.

Chris Beck has returned from Los Angeles to which place he was called by the serious illness of his mother, who is now much improved in health and practically out of danger. After looking Los Angeles and many other points over very thoroughly, Mr. Beck declares himself entirely satisfied with Lincoln.

M. C. Lefler, superintendent of the city schools, has been in Cleveland, O., during the week attending the meeting of the superintendents' section of the national educational association. The session closed Friday but Mr. Lefler will remain in east for a few days to investigate school conditions in other cities.

Mrs. E. Flynn of Omaha is taking surgical treatment at St. Elizabeth's hospital.

HEIR TO $5,000 POLICY

GRAND ISLAND, Neb., March 3.—The discovery by officers of the Salvation Army of Harold G. Howard, eleven, pupil at the Jefferson school alone, hungry and destitute on the streets of Grand Island, resulted in bringing to light the story of the boy's life, filled with the pathos of a mother's love and sacrifice, and ending in the lad's present plight.

Facts learned in the case also started an investigation to ascertain what has become of $5,000 which was paid by the insurance company on a policy covering the life of Harold's mother at the time of her death and of which he was the beneficiary.

Interested attorneys and others of influence are delving into the situation to learn what became of the insurance money and if possible to return it to the boy.

Themother whose sole possession was the insurance policy struggled day and night and until her death to keep the lad in school. When she died recently the boy said he had become a wanderer.

MRS. MARY THORNTON DEAD

Lincoln Woman Dies in Michigan—Was Mother of Former Burlington Employe.

Word has been received of the death of Mrs. Mary L. Thornton at Lansing, Mich., Thursday night after a short illness. She was the mother of Richard B. Thornton, ("Dick"), for many years chief of the telegraph office of the Burlington at Lincoln.

Mrs. Thornton left Lincoln several years ago to make her home with her son, Richard, to whom she was greatly devoted. She was an old resident of Lincoln and of Nebraska. Her husband was a pioneer school teacher of the state an dtaught for a long time in Lancaster and other counties. The family home was at 1427 Washington street. A married daughter lives in Kansas. Mrs. Thornton was active in religious and temperance work and a woman of fine mental accomplishments. The body will be brought to Lincoln for interment.

RUSSELL CASE PROCEEDS

Sensational Divorce Trial in London Brings Out Admission of Russell's Corsets.

LONDON, March 3.—The Russell divorce case, in which the Hon. John Russell, son of Lord Ampthill, seeks decree on grounds of misconduct, increased in interest for London society today, following striking admissions by the plaintiff under cross-examination.

Russell, who stated his marriage never had been consummated, while his wife claimed it had been while her husband was in a somnabulastic stiate, admitted he frequently dressed as a woman. He confessed to possessing a feminine outfit, complete to corsets and silk stockings.

LINCOLN CLUB TO ORGANIZE

Sponsors and prospective members of the Lincoln club will meet at the chamber of commerce Wednesday at 8 p. m. to organize. More than the minimum of 100 charter members have signed applications, and the next steps will be considered Wednesday evening. It is planned to make the Lincoln club purely social, with a limited membership and large enough dues to insure a sound financial basis.

RADIO IN THE HOME

BY HENRY M. NEELY.

Another Easily Made Reinartz Set.

In experimenting with the hook-up I gave not long ago showing how three honeycomb coils can be used in a modification of the Reinartz circuit, I became so convinced that here was a hook-up which was peculiarly adaptabit to the amateur who did not know much about radio and had not much money to spend that I experimented along my own lines to see how simply the whole outfit could be made.

The arrangement given in this diagram is the result. The coil part of the outfit is merely a salt box or an oatmeal box with three sections of wire wound around it. These sections are not connected to each other and this fact must be borne in mind. They are wound so close to each other that in the picture it looks almost as tho they were joined, but they are not. There are three separate sections, the first consisting of fifty turns and the second and third consisting of seventy-five turns each.

In winding these coils you can use any kind of double cotton-covered or silk-covered wire and any size from No. 28 to No. 22. I prefer the No. 28 myself because it seems to me that the smaller space the windings occupy the better the sets operate.

Wind your three sections of coil on the oatmeal box and bring the six loose ends of the three sections thru holes punched in the box so that they will hold tightly. Then give the windings of the coil a very light coat of shellac so as to hold them in place and you can go ahead with your hook-up.

In order to be sure that you do not get these wires mixed up in the coil I will give here the usual check-up list of wiring for a set. Follow this carefully and you will have an outfit that will surprise you with its simplicity of operation, its cheapness and the ease with which it can be built and put together.

The aerial lead-in goes, of course, to the aerial binding post. The aerial binding post goes to one side of a .0005 condenser and that same side of the condenser goes to the first turn of the second section of the coil. The other side of the condenser goes to the last turn of the first section of the coil.

Then wire the first turn of the first section over to the plate binding post on the bulb socket and wire that plate binding post also to the upper outside blade of the jack. Wire the other outside blade of the jack to the plus side of the B-battery and the two inside blades of the jack to two binding posts to provide for amplification later when you want to add it.

Going back to the other side of the diagram, the ground binding post is wired to the last turn of the second section of the coil and is also wired to one side of the .twenty-three-plate vernier variable condenser. The same side of the variable condenser is wired to the first turn of the third section of the coil and also to the side binding post on the dry cell. This side binding post on the dry cell also goes to one of the filament connections on the bulb socket.

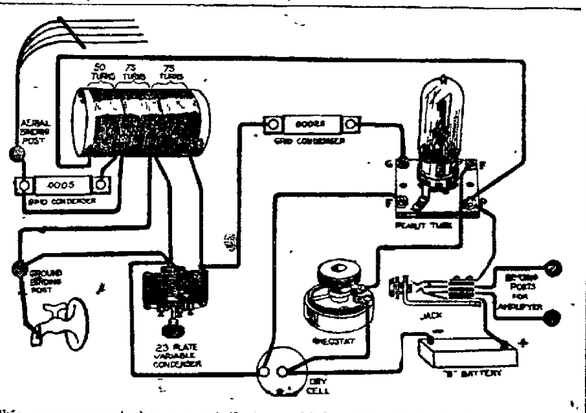

The last turn on the third section of the coil goes to the other side of the twenty-three-plate condenser and that same side of the variable condenser goes to one side of the grid condenser, the other side of the grid condenser going to the grid binding post on the bulb socket.

The center binding post of the dry cell is wired to the center of the rheostat and the side of the rheostat goes to the other filament connection on the socket. The center binding post of the dry cell also goes to the minus side of the B-battery.

In this hook-up the only control necessary is the knob of the twenty-three-plate variable condenser. It is almost essential to have a vernier condenser here, altho I have had really remarkably satisfactory results with a condenser without a vernier attachment. The tuning is astonishingly sharp and distinct for a set that requires only one control. It must be remembered, however, that the rheostat also is important in getting the purest signals.

This hook-up will do either for the regular six-volt tube or for the peanut tube. I am giving it here for the peanut tube simply because there seems to be such a demand for hook-ups showing this economical little piece of apparatus.

(Copyright, 1923, by Public Ledger Co.)

HAYS OFFICIALS ARE FREED

CHICAGO, March 3.—Officials of the Dan Hayes land corporation, charged with using the mails to defraud, were freed by a jury in federal court here last night. The twelve officials of the company were declared not guilty of having sold lands in California unfit for cultivation, represented as choice farming soil.

The trial lasted seven weeks. More than 200 witnesses were heard.

BERLIN, March 3.—Thirty persons were wounded, five seriously in a clash between national socialists and communists at Ausberg, in Bavaria, according to reports from Munich.

OBITUARY.

Marjorie Alice Miles.

Marjorie Alice Cully was born June 2, 1911 at Dillon, Neb., and died at St. Elizabeth's hospital Lincoln, Neb. Feb. 28, 1923 aged 11 years.

She was the youngest child of Jesse and a sister, Ruth, died in 1917. The family moved to University Place in 1917. Marjorie attended high school here where she was graduated with the class of 1919. She was married to Floyd W. Miles September 6, 1919.

She united with the Methodist church when she was twelve years old, and has always been active in League and Sunday school work.

During her illness she was a brave and patient sufferer, being thoughtful of her nurse and all who ministered to her needs. Her greatest concern was for her babies.

Besides the young husband she leaves two children, Alice Jean, aged two and one-half years and Floyd Marvin, aged two weeks, her mother, her sister Gladys and her brother Robert, with a host of relatives and friends who mourn because one so loved should have a life so brief.

The sympathy of all goes out to these sorrowing ones praying that they may find comfort in knowing that Marjorie has gone where sickness and pain are unknown.

TO NARROW DOWN CHARGES

Only Those Against Veterans' Bureau Backed by Accurate Information to Be Investigated.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Charges against the veterans bureau to be investigated by a special senate committee will be narrowed down to only those attacks which seem to be backed by accurate information, Senator Reed, Pennsylvania, chairman of the committee, said today after a conference with President Harding at the white house.

The committee, he said, would take up the investigation Monday.

ject for the next round table discussion. Captain G. R. C. Fisher, from the American Red Cross in Omaha, gave a talk and demonstration on first aid, assisted by a demonstration team of six girls from Omaha. Mrs. F. F. Teal talked on "Camping" to both sections, and discussions followed, led by Miss Mary Louise Guy of Omaha, in the girls section, and by Mrs. F. W. Putney for the guardians.

"Double Our Love" was the subject for discussion in the last round table. Mrs. C. O. Bruce led the girls on what it means to be a Camp Fire girl, and what is liked best in the Camp Fire program. Mrs. Marion Webster of Valley led the guardians in discussing the community cooperation with other organizations, and the score of Camp Fire material.

From 12:15 to 1:15 the girls and guardians held a joint session for group singing and Camp Fire songs, led by Mrs. Robbins. A banquet at the Chamber of Commerce followed, and at 3 o'clock a double camp fire was held.

JOE BURNS FOR CHAIRMAN

To Head Committee From Democratic Club to Arrange Non-Partisan Mass Meeting.

Joe Burns was appointed chairman of a committee to arrange for a non-partisan mass meeting of taxpayers at the meeting of the Democratic luncheon club Saturday noon. Dr. E. A. Carr made the motion that a meeting to discuss high taxation should be arranged at once, and on adoption of the resolution, the chairman, Frank Mills, appointed a committee to be composed of Mr. Burns, Sterling F. Mutz and Mrs. C. S. Clayton. An endeavor will be made to secure the auditorium for an early date and to obtain the attendance of republicans as well as democrats for a citizens' meeting without party lines.

The chairman suggested that a final vote on the club's choice of a presidential candidate be made at the luncheon next Saturday. It was thot possible that Senator Hitchcock and other prominent speakers might be secured. Word was brought that Senator Hitchock was expected in Omaha next Tuesday.

T. J. Doyle who spoke following the luncheon, gave some of the reasons he had remained in the Democratic party. He contrasted the careers of Alexander Hamilton, patron sain of the republicans, and Thomas Jefferson, revered of the democrats, and declared that a representative form of government for the American people would have been impossible had Hamilton's ideals been followed. According to Mr. Doyle, it was democrats chiefly who upheld President Lincoln and secured his re-election at the close of the war of the rebellion.

AWARDS MADE BY KENNEDY

Walter Graces of Lincoln, Employed by the Globe Laundry Company, Given $15 Per Week.

Compensation Commissioner Kennedy has made awards as follows under the state compensation law:

Walter Graves, while in the employ of the Globe Laundry, Lincoln, was injured December 22, 1922, when he got his hand, arm and shoulders caught between the outside drum and inside cylinder of a washer, breaking his shoulder blade, collar bone and five ribs and cutting left arm in three places. A petition was filed before the compensation commissioner and a hearing held when compensation was allowed from December 22, 1922, at $15 per week until disability shall have ended plus hospital and medical expense.

L. A. Smith, employed by A. Phelps & Sons, was injured September 8, 1922, when he was caught in a foot ditch. The pressure of the earth crushed in his ribs on his right and left side and injured his right clavicle. Compensation was paid. A petition was filed before the compensation commissioner on Feb. 6, 1923, praying for a hearing to determine the extent of the permanent disability. A hearing was had February 28, 1923, when compensation was allowed for fifty per cent loss of use of plaintiff's right arm, or 112 1-2 weeks, at $14 each week plus hospital and medical expense as provided by law. Mr. Smith was directed to obtain such employment as he could secure during the period compensation was being paid for loss of use of his arm, and at the end of that time, if there is any disability due to the injury to the chest and sides, then a further hearing will be had to determine such disability.

TRUSTEE FOR GUNN-DOUGLAS

William Holt was appointed trustee for the bankrupt Gunn-Douglas Milk Products company following the hearing of creditors Saturday before Referee McClenahan. Thirty or forty creditors, including farmers and dairymen, presented claims, which were allowed. Unsecured claims against the company total $14,247 and secured claims and taxes $34,259.52. A. G. Wolfenbarger, president, was examined, and testified that the company failed primarily because of lack of sufficient business. Since the annual meeting in January its operations have been conducted by Frank G. Olmstead as agent of the board of directors.

COTTON BILL IS PASSED

Senate Approves Provision That Cotton in Interstate Commerce Must Be Standardized.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—A bill specifying that all cotton sold in interstate or foreign commerce must be sold on the American standardization schedule, was passed today by the senate. The bill already has passed the house and now goes to the president for signature.

MOTORSHIP BURNS AT SEA

SAN FRANCISCO, March 3.—The motorship Babinda of the Admiral line, enroute from Los Angeles to San Francisco, burned at sea off Santa Cruz, Cal., early today.

Captain Maland and his crew of twenty-four abandoned the vessel and were picked up by the steamer Celilo. The Celilo is standing by the burning hulk of the Babinda, radio reports said.

BRITISH SHIPS FULLY ARMED.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Full recognition of the increasing menace to dreadnoughts of aerial attack is given by the British in plans for the two new battleships, the Nelson and Rodney. Not only will the upper deck be heavily armored against aircraft bombs and dropping shells fired from long range at high angles, but two other decks will be armored to furnish additional protection. These three armored decks, British experts believe, will furnish adequate protection against overhead attack to the ships' "vitals."

GENERAL ALLEN RETURNS

Commander of American Army of Occupation and Last Fifty-four Men Reach Home.

NEW YORK, March 3.—"And they won't" come back till it's over over there."

Evidently it's over, for the last remnant of the American army of occupation arrived home today on the liner George Washington.

The remnant consisted of Major General Henry T. Allen and fifty-four men who had remained behind when the bulk of the force sailed, to wind up affairs in Coblenz.

STARS' WEDDING DEFERRED

Pola and Charlie Not to Have Ceremony Performed for at Least Two Months.

LOS ANGELES, March 3.—Charlie Chaplin and Pola Negri will not get married for at least two months, it was learned today.

Pola cannot finish work on her present picture before that, while completion of Chaplin's work on "Public Opinion" which he wrote and in which he is directing Edna Purviance, is still indefinite.

LIQUOR VIOLATIONS PILE UP

ALBANY, N. Y., March 3.—More convictions for intoxication were recorded in New York state in 1922 than in the previous year—and double the number of 1920—a report of the secretary of state today showed.

In 1922 there were nearly three times as many violations of the liquor laws as in 1921 and eight times as many as two years ago.

SINGLE STANDARD NEARER

Equal Right Measure Passes Second Reading in London—Would Facilitate Women's Divorce.

LONDON, March 3.—A single standard of morals for men and women in England appears likely as a result of equal rights measure passing its second reading in commons last night by a vote of 231 to 27.

The measure would abolish the cruelty or desertion proofs now necessary before a woman whose husband is guilty of misconduct can obtain a divorce.

LENINE CRITICALLY ILL

MOSCOW, March 3—Premier Lenine of Russia has been critically ill again, altho little mention of it has been made here. War Commissary Rakovisky announced today, however, that Lenine's condition is now favorable and that the premier will be able to return to work in three or four weeks. Lenine probably will open the next session of the communist party March 30.

BAKERS CASE DISMISSED

Appeal From Decision Favoring Nebraska Law Dropped by United States Supreme Court.

Attorney General Spillman announced Saturday that the Burns bread case has been dismissed by the United States supreme court. It was dismissed because it was not filed in time or because some rule of the court had not been complied with. Mr. Spillman said it is barely possible the bakers can obtain a reinstatement. The suit was an appeal to test the standard loaf law of Nebraska.

Scott Dye Chosen to Coach Husker Ball Team; Pneumonia Threatens Babe Ruth

LINCOLN LEAGUER TAKES ASSIGNMENT

Earl Carr Unable to Spare Time From His Studies—Dye Will Handle Nebraska Nine Until League Season Opens.

Scotty Dye, second baseman and field captain of the Lincoln state league club has been appointed to coach the Nebraska baseball team this spring. Head Coach Dawson announced the appointment Saturday morning. Earl Carr, who was offered the position felt he could not spare the time from his studies in the dental college.

"We have arranged with Dye to direct the team until the state league season opens. Either Carr or Owen Frank will take over the job at that time. Coach Frank is concentrating on the spring football practice now," Coach Dawson stated.

The appointment of Dye gives the Husker diamond artists a young man who is jammed full of the old go. As one fan said of Scotty with reference to his connection with the Links; "If Scott never got near a ball he would be worth whatever he's getting because he's always in there fighting."

Dye has played lots of baseball. He was up i nthe Threel league but a salary difference caused him to give President Tearney's "other" league the go by.

First call for diamond candidates will go forth right after the state basketball tournament. Captain Carman has been figuring on starting the battery candidates working out the kinks this week indoors.

STATE LEAGUER TO DIRECT UNI TEAM

SCOTT D...
Entitled now to prefix his name with either Coach of Captain. He is field captain of the Lincoln state league club and Head Coach Dawson announced Saturday morning Dye's appointment as coach of the Nebraska nine.

As Result of Decisions in Last Two Title Bouts Muldoon May go

Senator Walker Is Said to Have the Dander Up—Chairman Brands Opinion of Judges as "Sour."

NEW YORK, March 3.—Transfer of two ring titles by what he brands as "sour decisions," has aroused the wrath of William Muldoon, the boxing czar of New York, and he is looking for a new staff. Muldoon, chairman of the New York boxing commission, has announced that he will weed out the list of referees and judges and give some new talent a chance.

Muldoon surprised all the experts when he came out and expressed his private opinion that Harry Greb had beaten Tunney in their recent bout when the judges declared Tunney the winner.

Disagree Again.

The commissioner disagreed with his officials over the verdict in the Genaro-Villa fight, which removed the flyweight crown from the head of Villa.

"The margin was not enough to change a championship. In fact, I thought Villa won all the way," he said.

Muldoon then expressed the opinion that perhaps the commission needed some new judges and perhaps it would be a good thing to get them.

No one questions the honesty of the men who voted to remove the regal robes from Harry Greb and Pancho Villa, but a lot of the boys maintain that those judges didn't know much about fighting. Opinion with some of the boys, however, is influenced by the way they bet.

Means Big Shakeup?

The decisions in the Tunney-Greb and Genaro-Villa bouts practically meant decapitation of Muldoon as the chairman of the commission and the revision of the entire commission, according to the political gossip.

Governor Smith pays little attention to boxing matters and admits that he knows little about the game. He, however, expects his first lieutenant, Senator Jimmy Walker, to keep an eye on the game, and Walker is said to have his ire up now and he wants to get Muldoon out.

NEBRASKA BOWLERS TO HOLD TOURNEY

Plan to Hold State Meet on Lincoln Alleys April 7 to 14—Delta Chi Wins League Championship.

Plans are being made to hold a Nebraska state bowling tournament on the Lincoln alleys, April 7 to 14 inclusive. Many of the larger cities and towns of the state are expected to list entries in the meet. Invitations are being mailed to class A and B bowlers and teams thruout the state. Competition in the meet will include singles, doubles, and five man teams.

The entry blanks are expected to be returned in three weeks in order that arrangements and final plans can be completed. Lincoln, Omaha, Beatrice, Hastings, Wahoo, Fremont, and Grand Island are expected to list teams in the tourney.

Special Meet Here.

A special meet, between three Omaha Standard Oil teams and three Hastings Standard Oil teams, is to be staged on the Lincoln alleys, Saturday at 3 p. m. Two mens' teams and one ladies' team from each place will feature in the special match. Both Omaha and Hastings teams have won the games rolled on their home alleys during a home and home series which they have been playing. This match on a neutral alley will decide the winners of the matches.

Delta Chis Win Match.

The Delta Chi pin knockers won the championship of the Independent league, Friday night, when they won a total pin match from the Psi Phi maple spillers, in a post season match rolled on the Lincoln alleys. The Delta Chi's took the lead during the last half of the league race and the Zips won the first lap of the champ discussion. The argument was settled Friday night, when the Delta Chis gained a 136 point advantage over the Zips.

In the Industrial league games rolled on the Y. M. C. A. alleys, the Pinney garage five shut the Reformatory out of the scoring column by carrying away all of the honors in the three game set. The scoring:

My Thirty Years in Baseball

by John J McGraw

Right there is the trouble with baseball unions. They don't know exactly what they are about. They are without definite aim. I sat down and gave this young man—a fine fellow, too—the best suggestion that I had. If they will follow the advice that I offered I believe the baseball fraternity could be made into a wonderful institution. I would be one of its most ardent supporters, and I think every other manager and old player would.

The prime motive of a baseball union should be to see that the veteran player when he is down and out is cared for. Very few of them have the foresight to prepare for old age. They have a good time while the good days are on. When their muscles begin to slip they find their pocketbooks just one or two slips ahead of their muscles. Their salaries gradually dwindle to nothing.

Player Fully Protected.

Now, if the union would devise a plan by which these old-timers could be cared for—so there would be no acute distress in old age—then the fraternity would be a great and growing institution. It is perfectly practical. The ballplayer is fully protected in the matter of contract by the commissioner of baseball. The commissioner is even more mindful of the player's interest than of the owner's, because of his apparent helplessness and lack of business knowledge. If the player can deliver the goods he never has complaint about the amount of his salary. It is the man who is slipping that complains.

That department of a union's business is secondary. His first aim should be the care of the old players. There is no doubt that it can be done.

Every fall, for instance, we have an old-timer's game. It always attracts attention. There is no reason why one such game should not be held in every city at the end of the season. If it was known that the receipts from these exhibition games would go to the aid of old ballplayers—the establishment of a home if necessary—fans would flock into the parks. Can you imagine what that would mean in funds?

Could Raise $320,000.

There are sixteen clubs in the two big leagues. If every one of them put on such an exhibition game a large sum could be realized. On a rough guess I should say that $20,000 would be a good average per game. That would mean $320,000.

Surely the members of the baseball fraternity have enough constructive ability and enough willingness to work out the details of such a plan. It would require intelligent administration. But they are engaging leaders to run the union. Certainly those men could attend to such administration.

The heart of every ballplayer should be in this work. If they go into it on that basis there is no question about the whole scheme being a success. On the other hand, if they try to make petty differences the prime motive of organization the whole thing will fail just as the unions have failed in the past. Nothing insures the future of any organization like accomplishment.

I cannot imagine any greater incentive to accomplishment than the helping of old ballplayers when their days of usefulness on the diamond are done.

Would Support Project.

I outlined this plan in detail to the representative of the union and he said he would think it over. I assured him that the Giants would be among the first to fall in with the scheme and put on the exhibition game. Any other club in either league will do the same.

In other words, the success of a union lies in the players getting the owners, managers and fans to work with them instead of in opposition.

I am so enthusiastic about this plan for helping the oldtimers that I would be willing for the managers to go into it even if the union should not take it up as a body.

Yes, there is a field for a baseball fraternity, but it is not a mere carping over certain clauses in contracts. Its purpose must be broad and helpful. It must be constructive, not obstructive.

KING OF SWAT SENT TO BED WITH FEVER

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 3.—Babe Ruth is a very sick man, was the word early today from the sick room here of the mighty slugger of the New York Yanks who is suffering from influenza.

Ruth's temperature was given as 104 today by Dr. A. W. Woote, attending physician. Babe was sent to bed with a high fever yesterday when he failed to throw off effects of a cold.

Pneumonia complications are feared, according to word from the Yank camp this morning.

The wife of the famous swat king has been called here from New Orleans, where she went to await the arrival of the Yanks for the spring training season.

The home run swatter came here with an advance guard two weeks ago to trim down to playing weight in hopes of regaining his home run stride. He had knocked off nearly forty pounds.

CLOSE CONFERENCE SEASON WITH WIN

Nebraska closed its conference basketball season Friday night by regaining a lead in the second half against Washington university of St. Louis, and maintaining it the remaining seven minutes of play for a 24 to 22 victory.

During the first half Nebraska outplayed Coach Applegram's proteges, taking two shots to the visitors' one, but Minner and Wagner managed to find the loop on some long tries. At half time the count was 14 to 8, favoring Nebraska.

Count On Free Throw.

The first counting of the second half was placed in Washington's column when Minner looped a gift shot. This seemed to start the Washingtonians who began a steady climb which put them out in front, 20 to 18. Cozier tied the count with a long basket and sunk another one which gave the Huskers a two point advantage. Usher rung one from the floor which iced the contest. Minner dribbled thru for Washington's last counter with less than a minute to play.

Minner was the entire Washington team. The canny right forward was the youth who broke the deadlock in two extra periods when Nebraska played at St. Louis and it was his work that gave the visitors their bid for victory in the second half here.

Cozier Sets Scoring Pace.

Cozier was the scoring ace for the Nebraskans. He shot from all angles. The Nebraskans showed more aggressiveness and played the ball harder against the Washington team than in any game on the home floor this season.

The game from whistle to whistle was a crowd-pleasing exhibition, the close score keeping the spectators in a furore. The summary:

CHURCH LEAGUES BATTLE AGAIN

The East Lincoln Christians won an 18 to 17 victory from the First Christians in a first church league battle which was staged on the Y. M. C. A. court, Friday night. In the second church league contest the First Baptists defeated the Zion Congregationals 26 to 4. The East Lincoln Christians downed the Zion Congregationals 17 to 5 in a Sunday school league battle. The games were loosely played, all quintets failing to make rapid headway with their teamwork. The players were inaccurate in a great majority of their goal shots.

Krieger may Sign For Denver Match

Ketonen passed thru Lincoln Friday. He and Krieger talked over a future meeting and it is not improbable that they may get together here. But how could two wrestlers sign a contract when there is no licensed club back of the match? They could sign of course, but what good would it do them? Those were the questions which Manager H. C. Wittmann put when asked if his charge had signed for a bout with Ketonen.

"We may sign for a match in Denver, April 10, however. Promoters have been seeking Krieger's services. They want him to go against August Sepp, Colorado's best middleweight or Mike Yokel former middleweight champion. And we may decide to take a fling at the Mile High city," Manager Wittmann stated.

LINKS GO DOWN TO CENTRAL CAGESTERS

OMAHA, Neb., March 2.—The Central high school basketball quintet won over the fast Lincoln high school cage five at Creighton gym Friday night by the score of 27 to 22. The win for the Purple evened the two contest series with the Links, who won from the locals at the capital city, Tuesday, 35 to 24.

Central took the lead at the start, when Percival sunk the leather in the first two minutes of play. Captain Brown of the Red and Black knotted the count a minute later with a difficult side shot, which was the only field goal scored by the visitors during the first period.

Lincoln failed to show the speed which they displayed in the first contest. Both teams failed at many shots and the Links did not locate the hoops until late in the second period.

For the losers, Captain Brown, who led the comback to save defeat, stood out scoring 14 points for his mates, while Olds and Corrick also played a good floor game and guarded well. Marrow counted 12 tallies for the winners, while Percival sunk four field shots. The guarding of Lawson and Gerlick held the Red and Black score low. The summary:

CREIGHTON PREP WINS GAME

Take 21 to 20 Register—Game Won in Last Minute of Play.

PLATTSMOUTH, Neb., March 2.—In an evenly contested game of basketball, Creighton Prep of Omaha defeated Plattsmouth high school, 21 to 20. The game was tied several times.

Plattsmouth led at the end of the first half, 10 to 8 and was in the lead in second half thirty seconds before fore time was called. Monhanan starred for Creighton while Gradville starred for Plattsmouth.

Walton Wins Two From Palmyra.

WALTON, Neb., March 2.—Walton took both ends of a doubleheader basketball game here Friday night from Palmyra, the boys winning 20 to 18 and the girls 38 to 4. This is Walton's last home game. The local team plays Cathedral high Monday night.

SIX HUNDRED TRACK MEN ENTER RELAYS

URBANA, Ill., March 3.—College stars of the midwest and south met here today for the sixth Illinois relay carnival.

Michigan, with twenty-one men on the ground, was expected to make the best team showing. Notre Dame, with a squad of ten, including the flashy Desch, who has just recovered from a broken leg, was expected to be well up in the running. The total entry list includes 600 star athletes, representing forty-seven institutions.

Easterners Meet In New York.

There is no general favorite this year, but there will be no lack of keen competition because most of the coaches are on hand with well balanced teams over which they are lavishing the affectionate care of a mother hen.

Cornell, with a team of thirty-two, is out to retain the title which they won last year but Princeton is also on deck with a formidable gang, to say nothing of the Dartmouth aggregation which recently won the Harvard-Cornell-Dartmouth triangular meet. All in all, it promises to be a big event.

VALPARAISO WINS CLOSE GAME

Beat David City by Margin of Three Points, 15 to 12.

VALPARAISO, Neb., March 2.—Valparaiso won a close game of basketball here Friday night from David City, 15 to 12. This makes Valparaiso's eighteenth victory out of twenty-one starts. In a preliminary game, Valparaiso girls won from Cedar Bluffs girls, 19 to 9. The summary of the boys' game:

Fremont Defeats South Omaha Five

FREMONT, Neb., March 2.—Fremont high defeated South Omaha high here Friday night by a score of 26 to 22 after two extra five minute periods were played to break a tie of 17 to 17.

Coach Patton's team lead until the end of the regular period when Fremont succeeded in overtaking the visitors.

Coach Dow replaced his first team with second string men when the score stood 11 to 4 for Omaha. The subs snatched the game from defeat when they added ten points while the Packers gathered six points.

The first team re-entered the contest at the start of the fourth quarter and tied the score at 17 to 17. At the end of five minutes, each team had added a field goal. The final extra period brought victory.

Graham and Wedberg were the big point getters for the Packers. J. Gray, H. Gray and Chambers featured in basket shooting for Fremont.

FRENCH AND CONLEY IN DRAW

CENTRAL CITY, March 2.—Kid French, local fistic idol, upset all outside calculations in his bout with Ray Conley of Wichita at the Donelson theater in this city Thursday night. It was not anticipated that he would stick with his man to exceed three rounds, having suffered a severe cut above his eye in training two days previous to the bout.

Conley worked on this to good advantage and altho it proved a serious handicap to French he came back with his usual skill and at the end of the seventh dispatched a right arm swing that played havoc with his opponent's eye. Blows were exchanged and landed frequently by both men but the Kid's cunning was more than Conley had reckoned for and he was unable to land with telling effect.

Harry Reed of Lincoln refereed the battle and awarded a draw. In the semi windup Rusty Evans of York administered the K. O. to Nick Bright of Grand Island after the fight had progressed three rounds.

ENTRIES IN STATE MEET CLASSIFIED

The classifications of the entries in the state high school basketball tournament were completed Friday night at the meeting of the state high school athletic board held here. A good many changes were made in the different classes. The board will not release the pairings for the classifications of the different teams until Sunday morning when they will appear in the Journal.

A total of 232 teams have entered the tournament, seven more than in last year's meet. Eight quintets during the '22 meet failed to appear and forfeited their games.

The state high school athletic board of three members, W. J. Braham of North Platte, W. G. Brooks of York, and A. M. Nelson of Auburn, worked out the classification and pairings. They made the divisions into classes according to the record each team made during the season, the number of students in high school, the rating accorded the team during the previous meet, and the requests of the team sponsors asking to be placed in certain classes. By agreement of the members according to the set standard, the classifications were made.

One of the new features of the '23 tournament is the appointing of the York high school band as the official high school tournament band. This organization will be given a reserved section during the playing of the final games at the coliseum but are required to pay their own expenses, including a gate fee. It is the idea of the board to appoint a different band each year.

Greece Has the Parthenon Nebraska Has the Food

"When they begin to talk of Greece and Rome," said Mr. Dooley, "I takes my hat and goes home." Yet he might have stayed and learned how the intellectual and artistic genius of Greece twenty-four hundred years ago contributes to the value of our farm crops in Nebraska today.

Greece was supreme in artistic creation, yet her wealth was the wealth of contribution and of barter. She never possessed natural resources for the creation of new wealth such as we possess in Nebraska today.

Inexhaustible agricultural resources for the creation of new wealth and a refinement of taste on the part of its people that demands for its satisfaction the best of everything known in a manufactured product—what a perfect combination for commerce!

Agriculturally, Nebraska is dominated by one great periodical—

CHICAGO, March 3—Rain in the southwest, relieving some of the winter wheat territory which has been directly in need of moisture, caused grain prices to break on the Chicago board of trade today

The demand for wheat was checked by moisture in the extreme portions of the winter wheat belt, and the forecast for Kansas and Nebraska was rain or snow Sunday.

Armour estimated that July 1 the world's carry-over of wheat would be approximately 247,000,000 bushels, compared with 188,030,000 last year. Teh Allman Grain company's statement that there was a tremendous amount of wheat afloat and the Lake Erie and Buffalo elevators are filled with winter storage grain which must be disposed of before April, served to weaken prices. Western Canada farmers were reported holding 100,000,000 bushels, with Fort William elevators filled. On the drop about 500,000 bushels of Manitoba wheat were worked for export.

There was only a moderate trade in corn and prices were in sympathy with wheat. The cash demand was quiet. Receipts were liebral thruout the country. Export buying was reported in moderate proportions.

Oats held up fairly well in view of the weakness in other grains. The cash demand was good.

Provisions felt the weakness in grain and were lower.

Despite higher Liverpool prices, wheat dropped as a result of heavy selling, following a statement issued yesterday by a leading grain house which urged immediate hedging. Unexpected rains in portions of the southwest, with forecast of further precipitation over the week-end also served to weaken prices. Receipts, 45 cars.

Selling pressure was evident in corn. There was no export demand and little other business power. Receipts, 275 cars.

Grain Market Opinions.

Bartlett-Frazier & Co.—We look for higher levels in the near future.

J. E. Bennett & Co.—Conditions justify purchases on breaks.

Thomson McKinnon—Weather so—west will be a big factor in the wheat market. Oats probably offer better buying opportunities than corn.

Journal of Commerce Report.

CHICAGO, March 3.—Selling by outside holders and week-end evening up are expected as a result of the Marcey interview. Locals who are bullish however did not appear greatly impressed and said material recessions in prices wolild most likely prove only temporary.

That exporters are interested in winter wheat despite their continuous dirge about the absence of business, is indicated by the presence here of som liberal ordrs at slightly undr the market according to one operator.

The failure of the house issuing farm reserve figures of 855,000,000 bushels corn to identify the authority of the estimate serve to minimize its importance—Lamson.

Stock Market Opinions.

Housman & Co—The tobacco have possibilities The rails should do better.

Clark-Childs & Co.—Rails look like good purchases.

Coming Events in Stocks.

NEW YORK, March 3.—Stromberg—Speculative attention has been centered on Stromberg and the class of buying demanding attention are offered numerous opportunities in this speculative leader. Considering that there are only 75,000 shares of this stock outstanding comparatively small buying power has a marked effect on the price, hence the disposition in conservative quarters to avoid taking any position on the stck.—Lamson.

Wall Street Journal Review.

NEW YORK, March 3.—Inflationary tendencies are growing, according to the weekend trade reviews which tell of steadily increasing demand at rising prices. Commodity averages in February scored a greater proportionate rise than in any month for several years and all indications point to a further progress in the same direction before a check is met. In view of this foundation for the current uprush in the stock market, practiced observers held that the diversion of speculative interest into steel shares on an active scale could not be interpreted to indicate the end of the movement. Strength in the U. S. Seel, Bethlehem and Republic, and other leading independents, will do more to stimulate public buying than an advance in any other groups. Steel's buoyancy on Friday was not without its influence on today's early dealings. Trading broauened and the whole industrial list was active at the higher average level reached on the present bull market.

Opening stock prices: Sinclair, 34⅝; Retail Stores 83¾, up ⅛; Baldwin 139¾, up ⅝; U. S Rubber 59⅝, up ⅛; Pan-American "B" 76, up ⅛; Utah 75⅝, off ⅛; Republic Iron & Steel 87½, up ⅛; General Motors, 14⅞; Studebaker 121¼, up ⅜; American Woolen 106½, up ⅛; Anaconda 52⅞, off ⅛; U. S. Steel 108⅞, up ⅛; California Pete, 96½; Union Pacific 143, up 1¼.

NEW YORK, March 3.—Early profit taking came into the industrial list on the New York stock exchange today, but its effect on speculative sentiment was nullified by a remarkable outburst of strength in the whole rail group. Wall street has awaited this development for several weeks as the logical sequel to the substantial improvement in earnings accruing from the record volume of traffic handled since the beginning of the year. With rails moving ahead under leadership of old line shares like Union Pacific, New York Central, Northern Pacific. Great Northern, preferred, and Canadian Pacific, apprehension regarding the backwardness of the carrier groups was relieved and the theory that the bull swing still has some distance to go gained more new adherents.

Industrials steadily climbed all week into new high ground for the primary forward movement, but the relative sluggishness of the carrier stocks caused man observers to bo skeptical regarding the continuance of the upswing. However, optimism gained in the speculative community. Little importance was attached to recessions which took place in many sections of the industrial list. These were looked upon as a natural outcome of the extensive advances which took place in the week.

From Lucile's Diary.

On New Year's day I resolved to be kinder than ever this year, but so far nobody appears to appreciate the improvement. Yesterday my efforts to please seemed particularly unfortunate.

In the morning, when Tillie brought me my breakfast, I asked her how she was feeling.

"Oh, well enough, I suppose," she answered none too pleasantly, "traiping upstairs and everything."

"Tilly," I said, overlooking her crabbed tone and taking the opportunity to carry out my resolution, "you need a little rest. Why not take today off?"

"But, Miss Lucile, this ain't Thursday."

"Never mind about that. You go out to your sister's and have a good time."

"Well, I'd sure like to," she said, beaming upon me, but when I went downstairs I found mother in one of her trying moods.

"Why did you tell Tillie that she could go out today? Fannie and I have to go to the church guild lunch, so you'll have to stay with granny"

"Very well," I cheerfully replied, tho I must say I can't see why mother and Cousin Fannie are so devoted to the guild that they wouldn't stay home with granny when Tilly is out. I fear that even the best of people allow outside interests to interfere with home duties sometimes.

When I went into the kitchen I saw on the shelf a package of a new variety of breakfast cereal. When I read that it was especially suitable for children and old people I thought it would be just the thing for granny's lunch. I took her a nice bowl of it with cream.

"Why did you pick that Lady Washington geranium, child?" she asked querulously when I placed the tray on her sewing table.

"I thought you'd like it. It's so gay on your tray."

"I should say I do like it. Mrs. Greene gave me that plant and I've been trying for two years to make it bloom. When I saw how fine the bud was yesterday I thought I'd ask her over about tomorrow for a cup of tea and to see it. Now you've spoiled it all, Lucile—and why did you bring this invalid pap up here? I'm not ill and I like to eat in the dining room as I always do."

"I'm sorry, granny, that you aren't pleased," I told her, "I thought I'd save you the stairs, and this is a wonderful new cereal food that will be good for you. You know, dear, that you should be careful about your eating. We wish you to stay well and strong, darling."

"Umph," granny glanced at me keenly from behind her shining glasses. "Why are you so suddenly concerned about my health? Is Tillie out today? Did you have to get lunch?"

I often wish that granny were one of those gentle, quiet, lavender-and-real-lace sort of old ladies one reads about, instead of the snappy, energetic little person she is. I think a picturesque grandmother is a splendid background for a girl.

After I had eaten some cake and an orange for my own snack, it occurred to me that it would be a good opportunity to arrange the kitcehn pantry more efficiently. I felt that it would be a kindness to do it for Tillie while she was out. I took all the tinware and kitchen utensils down and placed them on the kitchen tables, and then I put the canned goods and preserves where they had been. Some of the things which aren't often used needed a good scouring, so I decided that it would be best to leave them all down and let Tilly clean them before they were put in their new places. So I left them and went to my room to rest. I was just awakening from a nap when in came mother, still irate.

"Lucile, Tillie is furious at the commotion you have made in the kitchen. Really I was afraid she would give notice. I wish you'd leave things alone. She is too cross to let any one into the kitchen. We shall have to go out for dinner."

"She is certainly ungrateful after my giving her a holiday and trying to help with a more convenient arrangement. I hate to be pessimistic, but I am afraid it doesn't pay to be nice to people like Tilly. Oh, mother, I wonder whether dad won't take us all over to the club tonight. We haven't dined there for ages. I'll wear my new dinner gown"

"That's important, Lucile," sniffed mother.—Chicago News.

How the Turks Govern.

A country may be fairly well judged by the class of people it elects to govern it, and if so, Turkey stands high among the nations.

Turkish deputies are paid $120 a month and cabinet officers get $150; so these men, who have given up their personal affairs and comfortable homes are not animated by mercenary motives in accepting positions under the government. Raouf Bev, the premier, a naval officer by profession has lived in America and England and besides being a men of broad ideas and energetic and patriotic character has a remarkable personality.

Feizi Bey, the minister of public works, is a man who would stand out prominently in any country and any company. He has neglected large personal interests to work for his country, is keen, extremely human and has a rare personal magnetism. Adnan Bey, vice president of the Angora parliament and practically head of that body, as Mustapha Kemal Pasha only takes the active presidency on special occasions, is exceptionally well fitted for such a position. His quiet, even temper harmonizes the different elements of parliament. Altho in poor health, he sticks to his post where an ordinary man, less patriotic, would leave for a more healthful climate. His wife, Halide Edib Hanoum, is a graduate of the American college in Constantinople and the leading woman in Turkey. Between them they have a marked influence for good in their country.

There is not a weak link in the chain. These men work together harmoniously and patriotically with two cardinal aims—first, that the Turks shall be ruled by the Turks, and, second that their country shall prosper by every modern and progressive means obtainable. The first they have practically accomplished against the greatest odds imaginable and the second they will accomplish in just as decisive a manner.

It is remarkable that Turkey of all the nations on both sides of the struggle that were down to the bitter end of their resources during the world war and as a result of it, was the only one to understand the temptation to issue unsecured paper money The nationalists had the power and every excuse for doing so, more than any other country, due to their dire need of money, facing an invading nation backed by all the power of England. They did not issue one pound in Anatolia, and the finances of the country are just as they were when the armistice was signed. Economists consider this result, under the circumstances, as almost unparalleled.—Arthur Chester in the February Current History Magazine.

How Insects Walk on Water.

What makes it possible for the long-legged water flea to run right over the surface of a sheet of water? If we observe it closely, says Science Siftings, we see that the end of each of its six long legs makes a slight depression where it rests upon the surface. The surface is elastic, in fact, and acts like a spring mattress.

The physical basis of this mode of action may be explained as follows: The separate molecules of water cohere with considerable firmness and, therefore, offer a certain degree of resistance to penetration by any solid matter—but this is true only in case the body cannot be wet, i. e., if it has a composition like that of the fats. This is a result of the surface tension of the liquid, which acts like a stretched membrane. This is sufficient to support the weight of the water flea, tho it would be practically negligible for ourselves.—Detroit News.

Knew Her Mother.

"And shall I speak to your father, dearest?"

"Yes, but for goodness sake, don't say a word to mother."

"Why not?"

"Because we don't want the engagement made public for two or three days yet."—Boston Transcript.

U. S. Department of Agriculture, Weather Bureau, Charles F. Marvin, Chief.

Observations taken at 7 a. m. Air pressure reduced to sea level and lines drawn thru points of equal pressure. Arrows fly with the wind ○ clear ◐ partly cloudy. ● cloudy. Ⓡ rain. Ⓢ snow. Ⓜ report missing

Weather Conditions.

The center of the extensive area of low pressure has moved eastward from Minnesota to the lower St. Lawrence valley. An energetic area of low pressure has developed in the southwestern part of the area and is central today in southeastern Colorado but the area extends from Missouri westward to Nevada. Rain or snow has fallen in Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, California, Nevada, Utah, Wyoming, and South Dakota. High pressure and cold weather prevails in the northern and northwestern districts.

SIDE TALKS

(By Ruth Cameron.)

What the Wife Has.

"But what have I that she hasn't. Why should he prefer me to her so far as attractiveness goes?"

A middle aged wife asked me that question. She is a woman of about forty. Her husband, who is about the same age, has been much interested in a young stenographer, a girl of twenty-two.

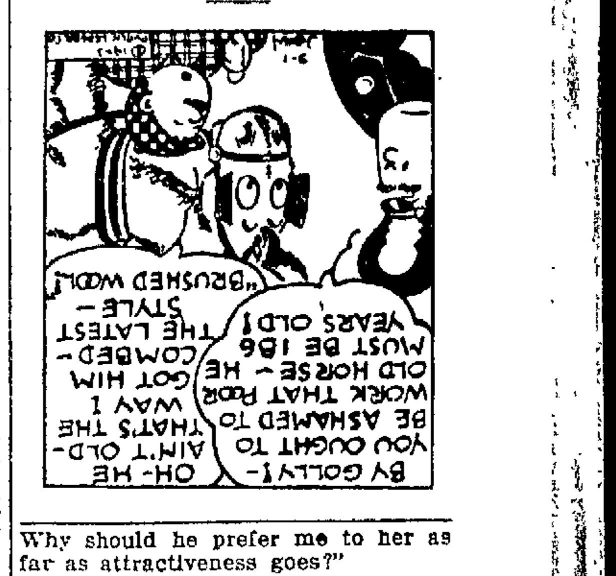

"I know," says the wife, who is an unusually broadminded, thoughtful woman, "that as far as morality goes, he is supposed to keep on loving me because he promised to. And I don't believe he ever would be really unfaithful to me. But I mean aside from all that, why shouldn't he be attracted to her more than to me? I think I was as pretty as she is at her age but that was twenty years ago. She is pretty right now. And she is enthusiastic, and she loves sports and has the strength for them that I haven't after having four children. And above all she is young. Her skin is fresh and her eyes are bright.—just as mine were twenty years ago.

As Many Women See It.

"I don't think I have neglected myself the way the women in stories do. I have done exercises and tried to take good care of my skin, but a woman of forty can't look twenty unless she spends all her time on that sort of thing. And I have had four children and run a house and take an interest in my husband's business and in the neighborhood and I couldn't spend all my time that way.

"And yet when I look at her and talk with her and feel how charming she is, I wouldn't blame him if he did fall in love with her. Why shouldn't he? What have I that she hasn't?

THE CROSSING COP

Why should he prefer me to her as far as attractiveness goes?"

I imagine there are many women who have faced things as they are, and asked themselves that question.

Teh Wife's Advantage.

If a husband and wife have been happy together, have been friends and companions, there is a great deal that the older woman can give that the girl, however pretty, however charming, however intelligent, cannot give.

There is between the husband and wife the kind of understanding that grows thru years of loving. She is quick in sympathetic reaction to his interests, to his moods, to his line of thought. He does not have to explain to her. If he wants to talk on any subject with her they have the background of former talks and do not have to start at the A. B. C. They know each other's vocabulary, they know each other's danger signals, each other's antipathies and sensitive spots. If she wants to use this knowledge wisely she can give him a sympathetic understanding, a response of the mind, that the girl however intelligent, however eager cannot give.

A man said to me once: "You talk to these young girls a while and enjoy them and then suddenly you get talking about things that interest you and you find you aren't getting any response. They are saying 'Yes' and 'No' and smiling but you know you are talking to a blank."

A Background Shared.

And then besides, there is a background of tenderness, of family catchwords, of jokes shared, of memories, of hard times and happy times gone thru together. You have that big bond between you that cannot be between him and her.

There is a paragraph in a recent novel that comes to me in this connection. The man's wife is very ill and he realizes that after all he does care more for her and all she stands for than for the other woman and what she means. Doubtless you have read it but I will quote it:

"But now he did not compare her with Tanis. She was not merely a woman to be contrasted with other women, but his own self, and tho he might criticize her and nag her, it was only as he might criticize and nag himself, interestedly, unpatronizingly, without the expectation of changing,—or any real desire to change,—the eternal essence."

MEN AND THINGS

Speaker Mathers said the other day that "politics is a menace to the people of Nebraska." He need not go outside the statehouse to prove it. A deadlock is seriously threatened between the governor and the legislature, not over any principle of government, but over a detail of it. The governor submits a plan of code revision by which he will absorb all appointive power. The republicans oppose it for the same reason. The republicans adopted four years ago a system of administering the business departments of the government. Before it had even been experimented with the democrats seized on it as a good political issue, and have ridden part way back into power on it. Now the governor proposes to make good a pledge that he would repeal the code by redistributing the offices under it and calling it something else.

Admitting that one cannot hope to get rid of politics in government so long as the people elect men who make a business of politics to the offices, what ought to be done in the present instance? If business men were confronted with such a situation they would sit down together and try to argue it out first, and then having found a possible basis of settlement proceed to get together on a workable plan. Here we have a proposition entirely business in its nature, but is there any disposition to get together and settle it as it must be settled if the public interest is to be conserved? There is not. Each side sits glowering at the other, and each periodically calls in the reporters to sling defiance at the other. Politics in the present situation certainly does menace the people of the state.

The strength of a nation lies in the unity of its people. Unity is possible only where no deliberately discordant elements are injected, where there is no attempt being made on the part of one section of the populace to take to themselves some advantage over the others. It is sometimes made impossible by the zealousness with which persons champion an economic policy which vitally interests them or a religion that enchains their emotions or where there is an overdeveloped racial consciousness which leads to clannishness. Where this is produced unwittingly, there is hope in an appeal to the intelligence and goodwill of men for a change in conditions. Where it is a deliberate attempt to stir up trouble, it ought to be handled as we treat overt acts of treason.

On behalf of the unorganized writers guild of the country, we shall file soon with congress a unanimously-adopted resolution asking it to fix a minimum rate per word to be paid by all newspapers and magazines to irregularly-employed authors, and in case the editors refuse any offerings that the government purchase these at a price of a cent a word and hold them until they can be placed in some publication. At the present time, as the incomes of writers clearly show, the price paid is below the cost of production. Certainly a nation that is willing to do something like this for the farmers who produce its bodily food, will be equally anxious to rescue from industrial slavery those who produce its mental pabulum.

It is the prevalence of the exception to the general rule that makes necessary, or at least apparently necessary, the enactment of so much restrictive legislation. It is difficult to imagine parents so indifferent or careless to their children's welfare as to fail to provide medical and surgical attention of the simplest character and to neglect or refuse to have their physical defects corrected when their attention is called to them; yet the school teachers and welfare workers give abundant testimony to the truth of the statement. Shall these children be allowed to become unwitting victims of ignorance or indifference or shall the state interfere and give them aid that protects them from the miseries of ill health in mature life? It is a serious question that cannot be settled by any insistence upon a doctrine of medical freedom.

With so many wealthy men falling victims to the unerring pistol practice of beautiful but discarded mistresses, all incentive to save one's money is being gradually crushed out. Not that we hold to the doctrine taught us by the materialists that satisfaction of the senses is the highest joy, or that we conclude from the large amount of testimony furnished by the sensational reporters, that the chief reason for getting money is that it enables one to finance a harem. The same source of news tells us that unscrupulous women make a business of seeking out wealthy but decent-living men and deliberately lead them from the paths of rectitude for the purpose of filling their purses with blackmail money.

Parents of Eugene Frey two and on-half years old, of St. Paul, Minn., think he is the youngest musical prodigy. He recognizes thirty-six famous compositions and can name them after opening bars have been played on the piano.

THE YOUNG LADY ACROSS THE WAY.

The young lady across the way says the thing to do is to catch the man higher up and she doesn't consider the poor ignorant bootlegger half so much to blame as the bar association.

BEAST, BIRD AND FISH

By Walter Wellman.

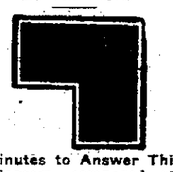

Four objects are pictured on the fence. You are to print down the names of the four objects, and then use all the letters to spell the name of an animal, a bird, and a fish. Can you do it? You are to use a letter only as many times as it appears in the names of the objects, and you are to have no letters left over.
